THE BEAVER ARGUS.

Vol. 53—No. [illegible] Beaver, Pa., Wednesday, May 3, 1871. Established 1818.

THE BEAVER ARGUS Is published every Wednesday in the old Argus building on Third St., Beaver, Pa., at $2 per year in advance.

Communications on subjects of local or general interest are respectfully solicited. [illegible] this kind must invariably be accompanied by the name of the author.

Letters and communications should be addressed to J. WEYAND, Beaver, Pa.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Advertisements are inserted at the rate of $1,00 per square for first insertion, and for each subsequent insertion 50 cents. A liberal discount made on yearly advertisements.

A space equal to ten lines of this type measures a square.

Business Notices set under a head by themselves immediately after the local news, will be charged ten cents a line for each insertion.

Advertisements should be handed in before Monday noon to insure insertion in that week's paper.

A REMINDER.

To Debilitated Persons,
To Dyspeptics,
To Sufferers from Liver Complaint,
To those having no Appetite,
To those with Broken Down Constitutions,
To Nervous People,
To Children Wasting Away,
To any with Debilitated Digestive Organs,

Or Suffering with any of the following Symptoms, which indicate Disordered Liver or Stomach, such as Constipation, Inward Piles, Fullness or Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fullness, or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the heart, Choking or Fluttering Sensations when in a lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, &c., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, & Great Depression of Spirits.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

A Bitters without Alcohol or Spirits of any kind.

Is different from all others. It is composed of the pure Juices, or Vital Principle of Roots, Herbs and Barks, (or as medicinally termed Extracts,) the worthless or inert portions of the ingredients not being used. Therefore, in one Bottle of these Bitters there is contained as much medicinal virtue as will be found in several gallons of ordinary mixtures. The Roots, &c., used in this Bitters, are grown in Germany, their vital principles extracted in that country by a scientific Chemist, and forwarded to the manufactory in this city, where they are compounded and bottled. Containing no spirituous ingredients, this Bitters is free from the objections urged against all others; no desire for stimulents can be induced from their use, they cannot make drunkards, and cannot under any circumstances, have any but a beneficial effect.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,

Was compounded for those not inclined to extreme bitters, and is intended for use in cases when some alcoholic stimulent is required in connection with the Tonic properties of the Bitters. Each bottle of the Tonic contains one bottle of the Bitters, combined with pure SANTA CRUZ RUM, and flavored in such a manner that the extreme bitterness of the Bitters is overcome, forming a preparation highly agreeable and pleasant to the palate and containing the medicinal virtue of the Bitters. The price of the Tonic is $1.50 per Bottle, which many persons think too high. They must take into consideration that the stimulent used is guaranteed to be of a pure quality. A poor article could be furnished at a cheaper price, but is it not better to pay a little more and have a good article? A medicinal preparation should contain none but the best ingredients; and they who expect to obtain a cheap compound, and be benefitted by it will most certainly be cheated.

SPEAK FOR THESE REMEDIES.

Who would ask for more Dignified or Stronger Testimony?

Hon. GEORGE W. WOODWARD, formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, at present Member of Congress from Pennsylvania, writes:

PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1867.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility and want of nervous action in the system. Yours truly,
GEORGE W. WOODWARD.

Hon. JAMES THOMPSON, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28, 1867.

I consider Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours with respect,
JAMES THOMPSON.

Hon. GEORGE SHARSWOOD, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania:

PHILADELPHIA, June 1. 1868.

I have found by experience that "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a very good tonic, relieving dyspeptic symptoms almost directly.
GEORGE SHARSWOOD.

Hon. Wm. F. Rogers, Mayor of the City of Buffalo, New-York:

Mayor's Office, Buffalo, June 22, 1869.

I have used "Hoofland's German Bitters and Tonic" in my family during the past year, and can recommend them as an excellent tonic, imparting tone and vigor to the system. Their use has been productive of decidedly beneficial effects.
WM. F. ROGERS.

Hon. Jas. M. Wood, Ex-Mayor of Williamsport, Pennsylvania:

I take great pleasure in recommending "Hoofland's German Tonic" to any one who may be afflicted with Dyspepsia. I had the Dyspepsia so badly it was impossible to keep any food on my stomach, and I became so weak as not to be able to walk half a mile. Two bottles of Tonic effected a perfect cure.

REMEMBER

THAT

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,

AND

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC

Will cure every Case of

MARASMUS,

Or Wasting away of the Body.

REMEMBER

THAT

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES

Are the medicines you require to purify the Blood, excite the torpid Liver to healthy action, and to enable you to pass safely through any hardships or exposure.

DR. HOOFLAND'S

PODOPHYLLIN,

Or Substitute for Mercury Pills.

TWO PILLS A DOSE.

The Most Powerful, yet Innocent, Vegetable Cathartic known.

It is not necessary to take a handful of these pills to produce the desired effect; two of them act quickly and powerfully, cleansing the Liver, Stomach and Bowels of all impurities. The principal ingredient is Podophyllin, or the Alcoholic Extract of Mandrake, which is by many times more powerful, acting and searching than the Mandrake itself. Its peculiar action is upon the Liver, cleaning it speedily from all obstructions, with all the power of Mercury, yet free from the injurious results attached to the use of that mineral.

For all diseases, in which the use of a cathartic is indicated, these pills will give entire satisfaction in every case. They NEVER FAIL.

In cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia and extreme costiveness, Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic should be used in connection with the Pills. The tonic effect of the Bitters or Tonic builds up the system. The Bitters or Tonic purifies the Blood, strengthens the Nerves, REGULATES the Liver, and gives strength, energy and vigor.

Keep your Bowels active with the Pills, and tone up the system with Bitters or Tonic, and no disease can retain its hold, or even assail you.

Recollect that it is DR. HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES that are so universally used and highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggist to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. These Remedies will be sent by Express to any locality, upon application to the PRINCIPAL OFFICE, at the GERMAN MEDICINE STORE, 631 Arch St., Philadelphia.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH PERFECTED!—T. J. & H. J. CHANDLER have purchased the exclusive right of Beaver county to use Dr. Stuck's Patent by which they can put up Vulcanite as thin as Gold Plate, with a beautiful enameled polish; and so light and elastic as to perfectly adapt itself to the mouth; obviating all that clumsy and bulky condition, so much complained of heretofore; and lessening their liability to break 100 per cent. Indeed, no one seeing it would be willing to wear the old style plate any longer than they could conveniently get them exchanged. All branches of Dentistry performed in the best and most substantial manner. In filling teeth with gold, etc., we challenge competition from any quarter, and can refer to living subjects whose fillings have stood between thirty and forty years. Among the number Hon. John Allison will exhibit fillings we inserted some 35 years ago; the teeth as perfect as the day they were filled. Laughing Gas prepared on a new plan, freeing it from all unpleasant and dangerous effects, making the extraction of teeth a source of pleasure rather than of horror and pain. Prices as low as any good dentist in the State. Office at Beaver Station, Rochester Pa.

SELECT MISCELLANY.

HARD TIMES.

BY AUGUSTA LARNED.

Mrs. Fairman was a proud woman, if she did enjoy misery; and she had no intention of letting Miss Henslow know that the family lived on canaille read.

Obed had been kicked in the chest by Black Bill, who was trying to run with the cart, and now he lay on the bed in the family bed-room, and Salome was with him.—Mrs. Fairman had told the men folks, more than a hundred times, that they ought to sell Black Bill; but she wasn't anybody to be considered, and no heed was paid to what she said. There was one satisfaction though; things had turned out exactly as she predicted they would, and that was the worst possible.

Now she stepped away from the stove where she had been carefully covering up the little gray loaves with a crash towel, she glanced out of the window at the spring pastures that were perishing for the want of rain, and where the cattle could scarcely nibble a mouthful; and beyond to the hard-looking plowed fields that showed only the faintest shimmer of blue-green oats. The wells were giving out, and springs that never before had been known to fail.

Mrs. Fairman's face had a cut-water outline. It was rheumy and pinched in at the nostrils, and tucked down at the corners of the mouth. Now, as she looked at the cold, bleak, brown fields taken in connection with the canailly loves behind the stove, it seemed plain to her mind that there was a judgment upon them; and in a somewhat vague way she connected the judgment with Obed, "who never had been under conviction since she married him," and who had seldom stepped his foot into the meeting house at the Corners. She had read in the newspaper that the drouth extended over the whole of New England, and a large portion of the Western States; but it did not occur to her that Providence was going considerably out of its way to punish Obed for his obstinacy and spiritual blindness.

A man had ridden, early in the morning, over from Salisbury with Whitcomb's bill, and had threatened to levy on some of the farm implements, and order a sheriff's sale unless it was paid in ten days. Mrs. Fairman knew that Obed was "drained" of money, and the prospect of being sold out of house and home, a thing she had so often predicted would happen, seemed dismally near.

Miss Henslow lived across the road in a little house that appeared to be always in the sulks. Now she left her goose heating, and took a section of Deacon Broderip's coat over her arm, with her big tailor's shears at her side, and went, stooping across the way. She had a crooked back, and a hooked nose, with a mouth that hid itself in the big cavity of her face, and which some way gave one the impression of a gigantic owl. She appeared to have a three-story throat, and to speak out of the basement door. She stepped over one of Salome's flower beds, where the "sturtions" could not push their heads through the caked soil, and she gave a sharp peck on the window pane with her steel thimble.

"I got the fidgets setting alone," she began, as Mrs. Fairman admitted her, and settled down, and let [illegible] showing a [illegible] "You see I dreamed [illegible] and it's always a bad sign. The last time it happened was just before Aunt Debby Strong died. Seth Barnaby and his cousin went up to the watch the last night and they said Miss Pratt, who'd been hired to stay there, set the scantiest supper ever was.—Did you hear about Hiram Walker's wife? She was Aunt Debby's niece, and is coming into the property; and just as soon as she got back from the grave, she went to counting over the things, and what do you think? There was six of the old lady's best linen sheets gone."

"Dear me," said Mrs. Fairman, coming out of the buttery with her apron half full of dried apples, "these are solemn times."

The expression had great force, although it was a little uncertain whether it applied to Aunt Debby's sheets or to things in general.

"I guess they be," croaked Miss Henslow, suspending the operation of paring one of the seams of Deacon Broderip's coat.—"It looks as though there wouldn't be a spear of grain raised this season; and there's Dave Blodgett, one of them Millerites—second adventers they call themselves—saying the world's going to be burnt up this year, on account of the big horn and the little horn in the book of Daniel. I asked him if he wouldn't like to engage me to make the ascension robe, for I thought if he didn't come out straight in his calculations, I might as well have the job."

Salome stepped out of the bed-room with a gruel bowl in her hand. She was a tall girl, with light hair just turning a little on gold. It had slipped out of its braid and was hanging against her white neck.

"What a mop of hair Lome has got" said Miss Henslow, when she had gone back into the bedroom. "I notice that weekly girls are apt to run to hair."

"Salome ain't rugged, that's certain," said Mrs. Fairman, who was interrupted in her calculations as to whether she could squeeze out molasses enough to sweeten the dried apples she was coring. "She ain't tough, and had to be put to hard work before she got her growth. If Sarah Jane didn't keep school to help along I couldn't keep Salome putter round for a year or two; and then I guess she'd get hearty; for the doctor says there ain't anything chronic."

"I don't know about that," broke in Miss Henslow. "She looks to me just like Sister Patty's girl that went off with the galloping consumption."

"There ain't no consumption in the family," returned Mrs. Fairman, giving a snappish little jerk to the hand that held the bread knife.

"Wal, I didn't mean to scare you, Mrs. Fairman; but then it is always best to be prepared for things as they come along."

"I'm never unprepared," returned the other dismally. "I've gone through with so much that it seems as though I was always expecting trouble; and Obed, he don't seem to sense things as I do; I don't s'pose it's to be expected. Religion's a great solemnizer, Miss Henslow; and now when it looks as if we all were going to starve, and the cows don't average any day more than two quarts apiece, it seems most a sin to be making jokes."

"Look here at Miss Dacres," said the tailoress. "Ain't she stiff necked? I understand Joe comes here pretty often after Lome."

"He comes to see the boys," returned Mrs. Fairman, with some asperity.

"Law, a young fellow can visit the boys and squint toward a girl at the same time. But I'll tell you what, the old lady won't like it if Jo means to play the game. I feel it my duty as a friend to let you know how the land lays."

Mrs. Fairman had finished coring her apples; and now she went to the sink and began plying the handle of the pump with such vigor that her neighbor's last words were fortunately lost. Miss Henslow remembered her goose heating red hot over home, so she took herself and her voice away; but not before she had got a peep at the canaille bread under the crash towel; and that same afternoon she thought it was her duty to go over to Mrs. Seth Spencer's, and tell that lady how straightened the Fairmans were.

Jo Dacres, a broad-shouldered, lusty young fellow, with a great stride, and a cheery, loud voice, was just opening the gate of the home place. It was the snuggest, best kept farm in the neighborhood.—Simeon Dacres, the old man was forehanded and had money laid up in the bank; and if there is anything country folks do respect and bow down before, it is money in bank.

Mrs. Dacres always regulated her affairs by the almanac; and the first of May the sitting room stove was taken down, whether or no; and now the house was as chilly as a cellar, with a clean smell about it of whitewash and varnish.

Mrs. Dacres was waiting for the men folks to come to dinner. She had blown the horn twice out of the back door, and the pork in the spider was curling itself up into little hard, billious looking scraps. With enforced patience she came in and sat down in the rocking-chair, with its puffy feather cushion, and untied her cap strings. She was a large woman, with a heavy tread, and a double chin, and an immense talent for managing. In her own person, she represented the hard-headed ethics of Burnham, and perhaps was more honest, if less nice, than some of her neighbors.

"Obed Fairman has been kicked by a horse, mother," said Jo, betraying a little hesitation in his tone. "The hurt isn't dangerous, but I think it would look friendly if you would step in and inquire how he is."

"If it ain't dangerous, I shan't stir a step," returned Mrs. Dacres, shutting her mouth in a positive line. "You do running enough over that way for the rest of the family; and I expect you'll make a fool of yourself one of these days."

"There might be two opinions about that," said Joe rather evasively.

"Wal, you know what I think I say right out flat-footed? You're hanging around that girl, and I expect you will get a weakly wife on your hands, who will be whining round with nuralligy or highpo half the time. Obed is shiftless. I don't mean that he's lazy; but he hain't got no kalkerlation. His wits are off wool gathering half the time; and Salome is cut out of the same piece of cloth. She's as easy as an old shoe, and would sozzle round a house and tend a lot of flowers, no matter whether there was any bread in the cupboard or not. If you are ever going to get ahead in the world, you must marry a woman that can help you push and pull, as I've helped your father—a regular staver, that can put her shoulder to the wheel, and not a bundle of aches and pains tied round the middle with a string, who will eat you up with doctor's bills."

Here was the Burnham valuation of woman put into the plainest words, and they made Joe wince.

"Salome isn't sickly," said Joe, in a gloomy tone. "She may not be as strong as some girls, but I feel sure she will turn out a healthy woman. I have told you before, that I don't mean to marry a drudge or a glare [illegible] human companion, and if I have a man to help me on the farm, my wife shall have a girl to help in the kitchen. I shan't go and look up a wife as I would a horse. A man gets his eye on a girl, and he longs for her, and likes her—he can't tell why. She is different to him from any other woman in the world, and he can't be happy without her. It isn't a thing for a fellow to be ashamed of, neither, if he's got one spark of manliness in him; and that's the way I feel towards Salome."

"Granny! exclaimed Mrs. Dacres, bringing her broad hand down on the arm of her chair at the height of the young fellow's ardor. "Do you think your father and me are going to give the money we've just worked and dug out of the ground to feed that Fairman tribe?"

"I don't ask your money," returned Jo, rather savagely. "I shall take what grandfather left me, and stock a hired farm, and then I shall ask Salome to be my wife."

He strode out of the house without eating his dinner, and marched off to the woods to free his mind of excitement. As he was getting over the snake fence by the roadside he saw Elder Northrup stop under the cherry trees in front of the Fairman farm-house, and fasten his horse. The Elder was a little man, and his Sunday suit seemed to tyranize over him a good deal. His coat cuffs descended over his hands, a tuft of still hair stood up above his narrow forehead, and he spoke with a slight snuffle.

Mrs. Fairman was ironing by the table when she saw him drive up, so she put her flat-iron back on the stove and went out on the stoop to meet him. "I'm so glad you've happened along to-day," she said, with her face drew into its usual puckers of anxious concern. "Perhaps you heard that Obed got hurt. He's laid up now, and I thought mebbe if you should talk with him there might be an awakening. You don't know how I've wrestled in prayer to bring Obed to conviction. I often think of what the Bible says about being unequally yoked with an unbeliever—not that I would have it thought that Obed ain't a good, moral man, kind to his women folks, and as good a provider as he can be, when times ain't hard; but it's been a trial.

"I know it has, sister. These are all filthy rags of self-righteousness," said the elder, taking out his bandana and wiping the dust from his thin legs. "The human heart is deceitful above all things, and despritly wicked."

Salome had been smoothing Obed's iron gray hair. He loved to feel the touch of her delicate fingers. One big brown hand, with prominent joints, lay on the patched quilt, and a man's face, so rugged and homely, with still a dreamy look in his eyes, was softened with an almost childish expression of peace. Mrs. Fairman came ushering in the elder.

"Glad to see you," said Obed to the little person, and he put out his hand with genuine warmth. "I've had a little pull back, but the doctor says I shall be round in a day or two."

"Ahem!" returned the elder, clearing his throat; "the Lord sends seasons of affliction on us to bring us to a sense of sin."

"I don't know about that," returned Obed with his eyes brightening. "I ain't familiar with the Lord's intentions as some folks pretend to be; and as for trouble, I guess we bring the most of it on ourselves."

"That ain't Bible doctrine," returned the elder, shaking his head dismally. "It may do to live by, but it won't serve in the hour of death."

"I don't know why," said Obed, whetting his argumentative weapon. "I guess what will stand in this life will stand in any other.

"The impertinent heart is in the gall of bitterness and the bond of iniquity," replied the elder, fidgeting on his chair. "How will the sinner feel in the day when the goats are separated from the sheep?"

"According to my ciphering," said Obed, "God means to take care of the goats too. They may not be worth as much as the sheep; there's a big difference in folks; but I guess they will go for what they're worth. At any rate, I shall take what comes, without grumbling or complaining. There's a passage of Scripture that says, "Though he slay me yet will I trust him." I've thought of that a good many times when I've been working alone in the field; and I guess I can take what the Lord sends; but there are some things men would like to force on me I ain't so ready to receive."

The elder couldn't think of any answer to this, so he cleared his throat; and said, "I should like, if you don't object, to have a season of prayer."

"I don't mind your praying," said Obed, cheerfully, "if you want to; but I guess the Lord knows all you can tell him, and a little more. Folks take a sight of pains to give him information. There's a still small voice spoken of that I've thought I've heard out in the lot sometimes, with the birds singing and everything still, and my heart has answered, and I've a kind of a notion that that was a prayer."

Mrs. Fairman and Salome were whispering together in the kitchen. "We must try and scrape the barrel," said the anxious housewife, "so as to get white flour enough to make griddle cakes for tea; then we can put on the canaille bread to look like one kind. You must tell Ezra to be sure and refuse the cakes. He's dreadful fond of them. There's the dried apple sauce, and a little plum preserves, just enough to help the elder twice; so I guess we shall manage to appear respectable."

The next day there came a change in the weather. The cold northeast wind gave way to a south breeze, and it grew warm and close. Big black clouds rolled up the sky, and anxious, longing eyes watched it, and prayed for rain.

The shower was coming when Salome went into her father's room with a letter in her hand. "Why, child," said he, opening it, "Banker, the man that bought the old Haynes place, wants to get three acres off the back end of my land. It's a strong piece, but it goes cornerin' into his'n and there's some folks that can't bear to have a notch in a farm, and I guess he's one of them kind. He offers a big price, and the money will pay off my debt to Whitcombe, and leave me something over. It does seem as though there was a Providence in it. I can't ever see that the Lord bears a spite to his children, but I am ready to acknowledge all his mercies."

"O father, it's raining!" cried Salome, as she rushed to the window. The big warm drops were beginning to patter down on the leaves and grass, and soak into the hard ground. Faster and faster it came roaring upon the roof, while the wind swayed the wee limbs of the trees.

"That's music," said Obed, with his face all aglow. "It makes me think of where the Bible speaks about 'the fields yielding their increase, and the clouds dropping fatness.' There ain't no such poetry as that anywhere."

The shower lasted a long, long time, and soaked into the thirsty ground, and brightened the grass, [illegible] the dandelions by [illegible] peace that had fallen over his spirit, Obed fell asleep. Salome sat beside him. Presently there came a tap at the window. She started and turned, and there stood Jo Dacres, leaning over the low sill, backed by a lilac bush just shaking out its plumes. Everything was glittering with bright drops, and a robin was singing overhead. Salome went softly to the window, and she never forgot how the bird's song sounded. She was dressed in a pale blue calico, a glazy stuff, but it just suited her style; and now, as she leaned out, her light hair fell about her face.

"I've taken the Spinner place," whispered Jo, "and used grandfather's money to stock it. I feel as strong as fifty men, but if you should refuse to marry me, I should be as weak as a cat."

This was the way Jo proposed; and and Salome just put out her hands to him, and for one moment her face was out of sight. The robin went on singing, and a tree bough showered down bright drops on Salome's hair, and the early rose began to bloom, and good moist smells came from everything, and there, over the happy girl's shoulders, was a rainbow spanning the dark cloud, which seemed to promise that there had come an end of hard times.—Golden Age.

ECCENTRICITIES OF EDITORS.

The eccentricities of editors would form a curious volume. It is possible that other classes of men may have as many distinctive marks, but the editor stamps himself so clearly in print that the observer has in him a first-class opportunity to get at some of his characteristics. Editors, too, lead so nervous and exciting an intellectual life that it is likely they really have more contradictions, whimsicalities and oddities than men in other walks of life. The writer has searched out a few of their peculiarities, and give them here with the simple assurance that all the examples given are genuine.

A noticeable feature in the profession is the names they often throw at each other. These expressions are oftenest indulged in by the Southern and Western press, and from them pass, in the form of a two or three line paragraph, from Maine to California. Commencing with the comparatively mild expressions of "A Walking Nihility," "An Ante-Mortem Dead-Beat," "An Old Sausage Cover," "A Disorganizing Malignant," or "An Illiterate Hedge-Priest," they often get on a little more steam, and come out with the bogus biography of a rival, which they head "Jackassativeness," or "A Mean Swindler," "An Editorial Cormorant," or "A Word About Live Carrion". Of late, editors do not seem to go so deeply into the business of calling each other very wicked names, yet we sometimes see such expressions as "Villainous Truck-and-Dicker Fellows," and that "Scoundrelly and Ridiculous Old Pudding Pan of Podunk." The following paragraph in this vein, from a recent paper, was doubtless considered a triumph by its writer:

> "The mass of condensed slum extracted from Railroad street culvert at low water, packed into the shape of a man, and placed in the editorial chair, amid the filth of the hovel in which the scavenger sneet down in the hollow is printed, is shaking his carrion paws at a party of ladies and gentlemen—who are so far his superiors that they would not soil their shoes by wiping them upon his filthy carcase—because he did not get deadhead tickets to the entertainment now held at the Union Hall for the suffering poor."

Is it surprising that we see lines like these:

> "The season for editors to call each other mangy, sneaky, mongrel whelps," has opened in Indiana."

Or, like these:

> "Editors are taking advantage of the coming state election to call each other 'Crooked-necked Old Wire-pulling Thieves and Bastards.'"

Sometimes, however, the name-calling takes a much pleasanter vein, and by creating a laugh, appears less disgusting in the eyes of the reading public. One editor in Indiana stated that a rival who was coming to town to start an opposition paper, was a pretty good fellow, but "parted his hair in the middle." Every man in the place who could leave his store went to the depot to see the new comer, but instead of seeing the spruce and dandified young man they expected, they saw an elderly and rather shabby gentleman who, as he raised his hat in honor of the crowd, they found to be as bald as a billiard ball. His hair was parted in the middle and the parting was four inches wide. The incident created such a laugh that the new publisher could not stand it, so he departed next day for "pastures new."

Editors often speak of themselves in a funny way. One would think by some of these expressions that they were made to fill out a column. For instance:

> "Sometimes we feel like a vial of pepper sauce, and then again like a molasses jug; never like a tar barrel."

Here is an example of refreshing frankness which does not often occur. The editor seems to have a just estimate of his ability:

> "We esteem ourself better on a conundrum than a philosophical paragraph."

We find here and there a funny specimen of "the dun direct." An editor is always frankest when asking for money. This is a gentle hint:

> "Money is close, but not close enough to reach. Nobody gets what is due him. We ought to, even the devil gets his due."

Here is one with a little more steam on:

> "Old notes falls wanted at this office on subscription."

And this one is decisive enough:

> "No paper next week, unless something turns up to raise some money."

But Mr. J. J. Barton, who signs himself "defunct publisher of the New Era," at Carbondale, Ill., takes the palm. He presents his ex-patrons with a portrait exhibiting his sadly attenuated proportions, and says:

> "I want you to understand I've not had a square meal, a drink of good whisky, nor a decent chew of tobacco for so long a time that I have forgotten how they taste. I have boarded round so long that my acquaintances have shook me. The store-keepers smile in my face when I ask trust for a peck of potatoes or a pound of codfish. My wife is growing cross and pale and peevishly, my children are crying for bread. I have made up my mind that I can't stand this sort of thing any longer. Money I must have. If you do not shell out by the first of April, I'm blasted if I don't she you, that's all."

On love matters and affairs which concern the sex generally the country editor is almost always as gentle as possible. But once in a while his expressions show him to be a little discontented with the sex. This man has doubtless been jilted:

> "Tis sweet to court,
> But oh! how bitter
> To court a gal
> And then not git her."

Here is one who appears to be a little mixed in his sentiments:

> "The statement that tight-lacing saves the country $[illegible] annually in board alone, is a villainous and habitual lie. I know a girl who laces so tight that my arm will go around her twice and lap over clear to the elbow, and one wouldn't think to look at her that she could eat anything except soup, but she has got an appetite like a cross-cut saw, and she mows a swath at a table like a self-raking reaper."

This chap hates to see the dear things suffer with toothache:

> "Pulverized alum and common salt put on a piece of cotton and chucked into a hollow tooth will shut up its aching so quick that you will want to hug us for telling you; but you cannot, unless you have a certificate of good moral character, are a married woman, and over twenty-five."

Another has been greatly shocked as follows:

> "They sent home with our washing yesterday a thing that branched off in two ways a little below the top like a railway junction, and has puckered frills edged with 'tatting' on each end of the divide. We don't know what it is, and we're a poor [illegible]."

Once in a while, even a country editor will reprove the sex, as the man [illegible] who kept as a standing [illegible] tricities enough to make an article of themselves. As they are mostly of the same nature, however, we will give but two as samples:

> "John Gardner was blind of an eye, and in a moment of confusion he stepped out of a receiving and discharging door in one of our warehouses into the ineffable glory of the celestial sphere."

The reader will perhaps remember the celebrated notice already in print: "While we cannot undertake to write obituary notices gratis, we will make those of our friends with pleasure," and almost every one has seen specimens like the following:

> "A New Hampshire paper, announcing the death of a man, says: 'He leaves a wife and child by a former husband.'"

In requiems of departed cotemporary sheets, editors are sometimes eccentric. Here is a single example:

> "Leaf by leaf the roses fall,
> Dime by dime the purse runs dry;
> One by one beyond recall,
> Mushroom papers droop and die."

While giving poetry, we may as well insert a curious specimen of brotherly love (?) clipped from a Western paper:

> "Free lovely—
> We love him, we love him, and who shall dare
> To chide us for bagging Sam Sinclair."

On certain occasions, as, for instance, when the paper has gone to press just too soon to insert a leader containing important news, the country editor will get over the difficulty in a very ingenious manner. Here is a sample leader from a Republican paper, expressing the editor's regret at the result of a recent election:

> "New Hampshire has gone Democratic."

Could a long double-leaded article have said more?

A late exchange says this of an equally eccentric election notice:

> "The Norwich Bulletin heads its Connecticut election returns with the sombre likeness of a solemn owl, and gives as a tail-piece to the whole, the likeness of a drooping rooster."

From time immemorial editors seem to have had a fancy for fish stories, and in this country particularly it is not unfrequently the case that a half dozen writers will take up the quill to surpass the exaggerated tales of their brother editors. The public are often amused at these trials of skill, but after three or four exhibitions of it something new is necessary. Here is the latest attempt. The New Orleans Times commenced:

> "A bar-room in our city has a peripatetic oyster of the Barataria breed, which is thoroughly domesticated, and wanders all over the lower part of the house, but never attempts, however, to mount the stairs."

And this is the response from the Bangor Whig:

> "It is said that one of our fish dealers has a tame clam, which he has taught to come at his whistle and follow him all over the house. The clam will stand on his hind legs and beg or lie down at the command of his master, and will sing, whistle, and count as high as thirteen, and if reports are true, is a most remarkable example of what patience will accomplish."

As we have stated, no attempt has been made to ever allude to all peculiarities in editors, but these few chance examples are enough to show that they are fearfully and wonderfully made.

Perhaps in closing, we cannot do better than to give an extract by one of themselves. It is a peculiarity in itself:

> "THOSE EDITORS:—A Californian is puzzled to know how to get ahead of "those editors." He says that an effort to deny them information is certain to result in wholesale publication of what ought not to be known. Whenever they are sued for libel the plaintiff in the case gets whipped. Whenever a fellow goes for them with a horsewhip, he knows how it is himself—that is, how the horsewhip is. If they are attacked through the papers, they invariably get in the last lick; and if they are remonstrated with, the affair is reported at length as one of those interviews. But he flatters himself that after all he knows how to fix them. 'We shall,' says he, 'paste a slip of paper inscribed with the ten commandments over the sally-port of a hornet's nest, and leave the leuncern on the editor's desk. The villain can't stand the decalogue; he can't see it without dropping everything, and methodically violating each separate injunction; he is as certain to punch his fist through that paper as was Ulysses to unseal his sack of storms.' If this man wants to die, he had better try the thing on, that's all."

THE united railroad companies of New Jersey Railroad and Transportation Company, Camdem and Amboy Railroad Company, the Philadelphia and Trenton Railroad, and the Delaware and Raritan Canal Company, have been leased by the Pennsylvania Railroad company, which agrees to pay ten per cent. per annum on the capital stock, and to assume all their obligations.

THE Joint High Commission terminated its labores on Wednesday last. It is said the members will hold another meeting to-day (May 3d) to consider some minor matters preparatory to a final dissolution as a Commission. The result of the Commission's labor has not yet been formally turned over to the State Department but everything will be finished and ready for condsideration at the Cabinet meeting on Friday, May, 5, at which time all the members are expected to be present. The members of the Commission still refuse to indicate any of the treaty, but it is stated that one or two Senators have been informed of certain agreements and are already looking up facts and preparing speeches in opposition to the treaty. Some of the English members of the Commission were to go to New York in a day or two, as was also General Schenck. Judge Hoar has gone to Massachusetts.

IN the case of White vs. Hart, et el.; an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from Georgia, involving the binding force of notes given for slaves before the issuance of the Emancipation Proclamation, will not be decided until the argument is heard in the similar case, Holmes vs. Stevens, an appeal from the Circuit Court of Arkansas, which will not probably be reached before December next. The decision in the former case it is said, will turn upon the question whether the provision of the Georgia Constitution prohibiting the enforcement of any debt consideration which was in slaves is in contravention of the article of the Constitution which declares that no State shall make any law impairing the obligation of a contract. The decision of the Supreme Court, rendered a few weeks ago in a case in which a note for slaves was concerned, was determined by other considerations, and the impression is prevalent in some quarters that the foregoing question was then decided erroneously.

THE horrors and infamy of the old Slavery system are well illustrated in the case of a handsome and intelligent brunette, Lizzie Carlton, who, a number of years ago, went to Louisville, Ky., and obtained a situation with a dress-maker. She became so popular in the establishment that she was made superintendent, and, by her amiability and pleasant manners, gained many sincere friends. She joined the Baptist Church, and after a time was married to one of its prominent members, Philip Slaugh- [illegible] gether until, one evening, a Missis- [illegible] Slaughter as his runaway slave. She [illegible] of a Portuguese woman and a wealthy New Orleans planter, who, to conceal their relation from his wife, took his mistress to his house as his slave, she consenting for love's sake. The assumption was plausible, as the Portuguese was so dark as to appear like a light mulatto. Slaughter was so moved by his affection that he kept the scandal quiet by buying his wife from the planter. He was weak-minded and weak-hearted, however, and was induced to believe, by his relatives, that the woman must have negro blood in her veins, and that it would ruin him, socially, to live with her. Consequently he turned his wife into the street. She went from one place to another, supporting herself as a seamstress, and in two months gave birth to a child. She bore up bravely until her husband married again. That broke her heart, and she died in a few weeks, in the arms of a Sister of Charity. After her death, several friends of Philip Slaughter went to Louisiana to ascertain the facts of the painful affair (they have just been disclosed), and learned that they were exactly as the poor woman had related them. It seemed that the New Orleans planter had died suddenly without revealing the truth about his Portuguese mistress, who soon followed him to the grave. His estate being much involved, the slaves among them little Lizzie, were sold to a stranger, who had no doubt she was as much his lawful property as the other chattels. Her new master, when the girl reached 14, determined to debauch her, and so she ran away, carrying with her the story, told by her mother, which nobody would believe. This distressing and o'er-true tale reads like a romantic fiction, and needs only amplification to make a novel of painful absurbing interest. Who says that our war, with all its cost of blood and treasure, was too dearly waged, when it has made the repetition of such atrocities no longer possible?

THE U. S. Supreme Court, in a recent case, have overruled their decision made some time ago as to the legal tender act being unconstitutional so far as relates to contracts made prior to its enactment. At the time of the former decision, there were eight Judges on the bench—five of whom made the decision. There are now more Judges, and the decision has been overruled. This will affect contracts to a very serious extent, at least such as have been liquidated under the former ruling of the court. It was stated that the recent decision would be announced on Monday; but it has since been ascertained that the opinions of the majority and minority of the Court will not then be read. They will be reserved for the adjourned term, which commences October 18th. It is understood, however, that an elaborate opinion will be read on Monday, announcing the unanimous decision of the Court on collateral points, sustaining the validity of gold contracts made since the passage of the legal tender act of 1862. Several important cases which have been argued this term will not be decided until after the expiration of the recess, among which is one from the Circuit Court of Kentucky, involving the question of the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Bill. The case of Klein and Pargout, involving the constitutionality of the so-called Drake Amendment, relating to the effect of pardons in court claims will be held under advisement until October, and so also will be the case of Watson et al. vs. Jones et al., involving the decision of disputed rights to the property of the Presbyterian Church North and South. In the latter case hopes are entertained that the differences will be accommodated and an amicable settlement effected by the General Assemblies of the two churches this summer, and it probably is in this view that the Supreme Court reservs decision.

IT will be seen by the following article, that the venerable Pittsburgh Gazette has awakened, at last, to the cognizance of the fact that "there is an organized body of professional borers and lobbyists" at Harrisburg, "whose ramifications extend throughout the Commonwealth," "upon whose purchaseable smiles of favor, or frowns of opposition, defend the life and death of any measure no matter how just it may be on the one hand or how dishonest and oppressive on the other." We are glad the Gazette has made this discovery; the more so, since it has heretofore taken occasion to gently admonish the ARGUS, among other Republican papers, for its imprudence—as the Gazette was pleased to denominate it—in making charges of this character. We confidently look for some action now, from our members, which shall work a much needed reformation in this regard. Indeed, we are so highly pleased with the Gazett's views on this subject that we copy the article entire:

LEGISLATIVE GUERRILLAS.

We have for some time past been aware of the existence away down in Harrisburg of an organized body of professional borers and lobbyists whose ramifications extend throughout the whole Commonwealth. So long as these buzzards and bloodsuckers hang on to the Legislature we can look for little fairness or expedition in the transaction of the public business. It would be unfair to make the assertion that there is some sort of a copartnership existing between the members themselves and the motley crowd of vultures who fill the lobbies and engineer the passage or defeat of measurers entrusted to their manipulation, but one thing is quite certain that so long as representatives vote and act according to lobby dictation they will merit at least the suspicion of all honest men. Indeed, it is a source of deep mortification to parties having business to transact with the Legislature to learn, upon making their advent into the State Capital, that the real power is held by an organized clan of genteel bummers on whose purchaseable smiles of favor or frowns of opposition depend the life and death of any measure no matter how just it may be on the one hand or how dishonest and oppressive on the other. The responsibility for the prosperous existence of these outside manipulations is equally divided between the members themselves and those parties seeking legislation, who hesitate not to purchase lobby pressure and influence. Of late it seems to have been the custom for parties with bills to press through the august Assembly of Pennsylvania, to ignore, at the outset, the members whose duty it is to represent them on the legislative floor, and to seek the camp of outside guerrillas preparatory to greasing their measurers that they may slip easily through the tortuous ways of legislation; and it seems a little singular, too, that bills pressed by the outsiders generally pass, while those which receive their op- [illegible] killed in some mysterious and unaccountable manner. The lobbyists [illegible] several years ago, we remember a rich divulgence was made of [illegible] his perpetual and disgraceful retirement from the lobby, where he had so long exerted subtle power and influence. Through his offending financial tactics he lined his own pockets with bribe-money, and the suspicion was directed towards innocent members by their constituents. But, as grave as were his failings, those who succeed him in the nefarious business of lobbying, go much further in their dishonest practices, and they should be summarily dethroned from the positions of power over the Legislature that they have attained.

Now, perhaps their good words and kindly offices in manoevering and watching little bills, when roundly paid for so doing, is all right, but we are of the opinion that they do more. It is quite easy for these shrewd sharpers to concoct bills calculated to seriously interfere with the rights, privileges and interests of classes and corporations, who will be compelled, in justice to themselves, to secure the defeat of such conflicting and unjust measures. Nay more, we know of one specific instance where a bill, seemingly without lawful parentage, was thrust into the Legislature for passage which was calculated to annoy and unnecessarily tax a large and important mercantile interest of this city. Those whom it affected were compelled to visit Harrisburgh to secure its defeat, which, thanks to one of our members, (Mr. Robb) has been done. We do not know whether this defeat of a bill framed by the guerrillas cost the merchants interested any money outside of the ordinary expenses attending a trip to the Capital, but we do know that they were met on the threshold of the legislative halls, with the proposition from a leading lobbyist to kill the bill for the modest sum of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS! We cite this instance because we have the positive proof at hand to make our words good, and to forcibly illustrate the fact that many of the bills sent into the Legislature are framed by dishonest schemers to accomplish no other purpose than to bleed those whose interests are jeopardized, and to keep up the finances of the hangers-on at Harrisburg. The best remedy we can suggest to correct this great evil is for all interested for or against any bill whatever, to entirely ignore the influence and power of the lobby guerillas and to place themselves in direct communication with the members they have selected to represent them and their interests. Thus, for want of patronage, they will be starved out of their haunts, and be compelled to use their peculiar talents in other directions—pocket picking, perhaps, the most congenial—and the State Capital will be all the better and legislation all the more honest.

THE Indians in New Mexico, are again committing outrages on the whites. A dispatch From Santa Fee April 22d, says Mr. Cosgrove left Messilla on that morning to look after the western coaches, the two last of which were behind time. It is reported, and it is doubtless true, that they have both been captured by the Indians and all on board killed. Every account from the west says the Indians are getting worse and worse, both on and off the road. They have been killing again near Silver City, and a party of soldiers and about fifty citizens are now out in pursuit. Last week the Indians ran off all of Mr. Steads' and some other cattle about a mile from the town. Nothing has been heard of them since. Things are coming to a focus in this part of the country, for the Indians seem more determined than ever to annihilate the whites of Southern New Mexico and Arizona, and unless some assistance is given pretty soon, it really seems that they have good grounds for hoping to accomplish this end. The Indians seem determined to entirely interrupt the mails between this place and Tucson, and thereby cut off communication between the two sections of the country.

Later.—Mr. Hantz, conductor of J. F. Bennett & Co.'s S. O. M. and Express Lines has reached Santa Fee and gives the following information. He left Lamesville on the afternoon of the 24th. News had then reached there that one of the coaches of the company had been found on the road between Lamesville and Tucson burned. The body of the driver was also found with his breast cut open and his heart taken out, split into pieces and laid over his face. Four ranchmen at San Pedro on the route were also killed. Also six emigrants coming from Tucson to New Mexico were killed. Some of the captured mail had been found with the checks cut to pieces, and was brought into Mesilla by one of the conductors. The Indians, a few days since killed two Mexicans and a German at Lorie Mountain and wounded another American near Silver City.

Good and Bad Piano-Playing.

A lecture was delivered by Prof. Bauter—entitled as above—to the students of the Beaver Seminary and Institute, on Friday evening last. Mr. Bauter said:

PUPILS AND FRIENDS:—In presenting this somewhat difficult subject to you this evening, we shall endeavor to do so in as terse a form as possible, as we are aware that the subject is rather dry and uninteresting to such as are not immediately interested therein; but we hope you will forbear with us for a little while; there may be some present that may possibly be benefitted thereby, and if such be the case we shall be amply rewarded. A sure touch on the piano is a splendid acquirement; in fact, there can be no really good playing without it, and it should therefore be the earnest desire of every young pianist to use every possible precaution and effort to acquire it. But you may ask, "How shall we attain this most important feature?" We shall attempt to point out what (in our humble estimation) is essentially necessary to bring about the desired results. First.—You should learn to play exercises on five notes correctly. You all know that the fingers are not equally strong. For instance, the thumb is the strongest; the fore-finger comes next, &c.; the third finger is, with almost every person, the weakest of all. Now, the piano student should make it his daily practice to equalise all the fingers, as much as possible, independently of each other. Secondly, These exercises should be practiced in reference to Dynamics—all the gradations of power, from the softest pianissimo, to a powerful fortissimo, should be made; always commencing them slowly and regular; and, as proficiency is acquired from day to day, faster until a high degree of speed is attained. When playing forte you should be careful not to lift the hand, but always lift the finger from the knuckle joint, as otherwise you add the force of the uplifted hand to that of the finger, and thereby degenerate into what is justly termed pounding or hacking. Another and very important feature in exercising on five keys is, systematic accentuation as all proficient pianists teach it; this accentuation gives independent strength to the fingers so practiced, and is of the very highest importance. When we refer to playing forte—the motion coming from the wrist as pernicious—we mean to be understood that this applies only to finger, not octave playing. Mozart, when presenting his sister with some of Clementi's Sonatas,—just then coming in vogue,—was so afraid that by practicing the frequent and lengthy octave passages with which Clementi's works abound, that he advised her to practice these places with great caution, and rather than sacrifice her lightness and grace of hand, to drop the piece altogether. We must take this advice of Mozart's with a good deal of allowance; because, in his day, the art of playing octaves was not developed to a great extent, and Clementi's wonderful octave playing was quite a new feature. Mozart was unwilling to acknowledge the advancement Clementi had made in regard to octave playing, and to-day we see the result. Mozart's piano compositions, comprising his many variations and sonatas, with the exception of a few of the latter, all sound antiquated and pedantic; and, in consequence, have disappeared from the concert programmes of the present time; while those of Clementi, although they are cold and mechanical, utterly devoid of the individual inspiration that characterizes the musical compositions of the great Mozart, still hold their place as admirable teaching pieces. We have steadily advanced since then in extending the general form of piano-forte compositions, especially those intended for display at concerts, insomuch that it became necessary to enlarge the piano to at least four times its original size, in order to bring out the compositions of Liszt, Dryschock, Chopin, Kullak, and others.

The art of playing octaves is now fully established, and no one that wishes to be a good pianist can realize their desires unless they pursue a systematic course in octave playing. Theodore Kullak—not a Frenchman, but a German residing at Berlin, occupying a very high position—a few years ago, was struck so forcibly with the want of a complete and thorough method in octave playing, that he immediately went to work to produce a system that should meet this deficiency, and as the result of his labors we have his excellent School of Octaves, in three books. We have frequently been amused at some young ladies—and young gentlemen as well—when, after having heard a brilliant performer play a difficult piece full of octave passages, often for both hands, (when they have not the least experience in octaves) go to work on the very same piece, and labor at it for weeks and months. The result of such practice must be obvious to any one. Their octaves resemble the clumsey tramp of the elephant, and are devoid of that crispy clearness, vivacity and finish of a well trained wrist. The training of the wrist is in many respects similar to that of the single fingers; the muscles of the wrist must be exercised until the natural stiffness gives way to an easy, flexible motion, similar to that of a lever falling and rising with a hidden spring as motive power. When the wrist is in this condition then the pupil is in a fair way of acquiring what is called a good [illegible] naturally flexible. A friend of ours, whom we believe to be possessed of good common sense [illegible] own words as follows: "What do you think of the variations on 'Home, sweet Home;' I sometimes ask young ladies to sing it for me; I like the tune very much." We said that we knew of a great many variations on that theme, but thought that Thalberg's was the best. "Well," said he, "I can get no satisfaction out of any of the variations that I have heard yet, I want to hear a tune in a piece of music, I get tired of so much noise and no melody before they get through playing." We suggested that he had probably not heard this piece played by a proficient performer. Not many days after this same friend had a chance to hear Thalberg's Home played, and as we judged from his remarks upon meeting him soon after, he seemed very much pleased, we give them entire as follows; "Oh," said he, "I have heard Home, and with the variations, too, it was splendid, I could hear every note of the melody. It was exactly as if one had been singing it." Alas, my friend, there are many like you—many a father sends his daughter to a seminary or a musical school to learn to play what—music, that he with his uncultivated but really musical ear, can understand, to while away an hour in the evening pleasantly, to listen to some plaintive strain, and forget some of the weary toils of the declining day; but how often is such a parent doomed to disappointment, instead of the sweet, soothing melodies his ear craves for, he gets variations without a theme, marches, polkas, waltzes, galopades, &c., played without rythmic accentuation of time, and consequently without the indispensable spirit that such compositions require; in fact, it is such a mess of ding dong that one might as well listen to half a dozen Chinese bands as the enjoyment derived therefrom is nearly the same in the latter as in the former. To hear a Variation, Transcription, Fantasia, or by whatever name the piece may be designated, so perverted and mixed up that a person can not hear the theme, is simply an outrage upon musical feeling; because without the theme there remains nothing but an insignificant musical noise. The theme must always predominate, no matter what the difficulties of the variations are, they are only intended to embellish the theme, and must never drown it. Here we think is the chief reason why so many persons not musically educated say that they cannot enjoy or understand difficult music; it is not so much the difficulty of the composition, but more the indifferent manner in which it is performed that they stumble against. One of the most vicious practices is the injudicious use of the right foot pedal; who has not seen the young lady who, when seating herself at the piano, puts her right foot down on the pedal and never takes it off until the part and sometimes the whole piece is gone through with, and such a pandemonium of noise some good people designate with the sublime term of music. Now, we hope that all our pupils present understand the proper management and use of the right foot pedal, as we have explained this matter frequently, but for those that are still uncertain about it we will go into detail: This pedal is principally used for prolonging the sound, thereby increasing the volume of the harmony (some call it the loud pedal, which we think is not at all proper, because it does not and can not make the tones louder, it only prolongs them by taking the dampers off the strings as long as the foot remains pressed down) and is a great help to bring out the proper effect in some compositions; when used properly it is capable of adding great strength and body, which is quite desirable in some pieces which would otherwise sound too thin. In most publications the pedal is marked by the author, in others the author has left it with the performer, supposing, of course, that the performer understands the rules by which he must be guided; these rules we have also frequently explained and do not deem it necessary to be mentioned here. The question naturally arises, Why are there so many careless and indifferent performers in spite of the very best teachers and methods, and this wholesale squandering of time? We would answer, because in these days young ladies are almost all laboring under the preposterous idea that unless a piece of music is not immensely difficult, perfectly black with notes, has a long French name, and is very brilliant, sparkling, dashy, showy, &c., it is not worth while learning. They do not like to be governed by the teacher's judgment, and in many cases have not sufficient judgment of their own to make the proper selections, the consequence is that the result is in nearly every case unsatisfactory. One that always practice pieces which are beyond her ability, will naturally lose the tone and vigor which is requisite to a clear and distinct manner of playing; nature cannot be imposed upon to any great extent, she revenges herself; the fingers gradually lose their tone and address, and hence the blurring of scale runs, arpeggios, octaves, &c. But enough for the present, we will not weary you any longer. We have tried to do our duty as we understand it, in showing you general defects in order that you may profit thereby, and would urge you now to take advantage of our experience and apply whatever you feel that would be to your interest and improvement. The spirit in which this little essay originated was one of kindness and we hope that you will all consider it as such and only such.

—It adds a new horror to railway accidents to know that there are four lions and one elephant on the unfortunate train. There was a collision on the Toledo and Wabash Road on the 20th, which must have been thrilling. The wind was roaring, the lightning was flashing, the four Kings of Beasts were very vocal in their overturned cages, the employees were excited, and nobody showed any presence of mind except the elephant, who is ignominiously described as remaining "docile as a frightened calf." No harm, however, was done by the lions, for their dens were unmashed; and the problem is still unsolved whether a lion, however hungry, would eat a citizen of Illinois, or whether the men of that State are more or less Daniels in their way.

A MISERABLE COMFORTER.

To the Editor of the Beaver Argus:

I have, this moment, finished reading, in your paper of this week, a most unhappy and uncalled-for paragraph from the pen of your correspondent, "Wyandotte." I think I am not mistaken in saying that I know your correspondent. He is a clergyman who would not willingly be the "miserable comforter" that his article has made him to a little home at Wampum.

I refer to his untimely and unfair allusions to poor Jack Kirkwood; and while I do not charge him with intentionally misrepresenting facts, I do think that his entire unacquaintance with the facts should have restrained him from firing such reckless random shots.

Why go into the newspaper at all with a philippic against Jack Kirkwood, when the "talk" of circulating a petition for his pardon is a mere piece of imagination? This "talk"—coming, as it does, from his heartless pursuers—is evidence to me that they feel the injustice of the long term of imprisonment he is now undergoing.

I sat and listened to every word of his trial in the city of New Castle. I felt just such sympathy with him, and his wife, and their babe, as made me thank GOD that I know I have got a heart. And I feel satisfied, in my own mind, that he was the unfortunate occasion, but not the guilty cause, of the death of Archy Knowles.

But he was convicted of Murder in the second degree. The blood-thirsty clamorers for his life were not fully gratified. He was sent to the prison instead of the gallows. I had the satisfaction of sitting by his side in the car as he passed the humble home at Wampum in which his loved ones count over the dreary months in the long years of his merciless sentence—and when he passed the Furnace at which occurred the fatal scene in which he was an unwilling actor. I have had the satisfaction of trying to point him, and those who love him at home, to a brighter future. Cannot those who hated him be satisfied to let him and them alone? And cannot those who write for the press find something else to employ their pens beside giving currency to unfounded rumors to wound afresh the hearts that bleed for him?

I have no war with types to wage against either Judge or Jury. I do not ask how any man can reconcile with the theory of his guilt Dr. Leasure's demonstration to the Jury that it was a physical impossibility for any man, with a shovel-handle, to make the wound that caused his death when it was described on the head of a person three inches taller than himself. I do not complain of the Court for refusing to admit, as evidence of provocation, proof of the repeated threats of the man whose language was, "I'll lay that d——d Kirkwood out cold and stiff before I leave this place." Nor do I complain of the admission, as "dying declarations," of the statements of the man who said, "All I ask of you is to get out of here, for I'll put you to the end of the law." I do not care to ask whether that was the language of a man who thought he was making dying declarations, and going into the immediate presence of GOD, or of a man who expected to live and prosecute Kirkwood for Assault and Batterry. I do not even complain of the unexpected length of Kirkwood's term of imprisonment. But I do complain of the spirit of those who want, through the columns of a newspaper, to needlessly and cruelly harrow up the feelings of hearts already wounded and bleeding. And I complain—in their name, and at their request—when the minister upon whose preaching Jack Kirkwood's little family attended will lend his pen to wound their hearts anew.

And I complain when facts are entirely misstated. Kirkwood never was known to have a difficulty in his life [illegible] his conviction, and now is published to prevent his pardon!

He is to known have struck a man once by the name of Connelly—purely in self-defence. But it was over three years before Connelly's death. I have it from the mouth of a physician who afterwards attended Connelly that he received no permanent injury from Kirkwood.

Connelly was a druken wretch and died—from what cause I need not now inquire—shortly after his enraged and outraged fellow-laborers had given him a severe punishment for cruelly beating his wife and children.

I make no excuse for Jack's faults. I am happy to know, from what he has written to me from his prison, that, if he has sorrowfully sinned, he has sorrowfully repented. I do not plead the unsufferable provocations on the part of Knowles as justification of his act. But I am unwilling to have him so needlessly and ruthlessly assailed when he is not here to defend himself. I have forgiveness for the recklessness of your correspondent, while I have no admiration for the heartlessness of his thrust—coming, as I believe it does, from the hand of a man who once escaped from a prison within 48 hours of his own execution!

I would be merciful to Jack Kirkwood as I hope in GOD to be merciful to me.

R. GREGOR M'GREGOR.

New Brighton, April 22, 1871.

Pennsylvania Legislature.

SENATE, April 24.—A bill was introduced to prevent the change of textbooks in the Common Schools oftener than once in three years; Also, a bill relative to oysters and clams, regulating their sale; the bill is intended to retaliate on New Jersey for offensive legislation on that subject. The border snake was made the special order for to-morrow evening. If legislators' itching-palms have been liberally medicined, the bill will pass and the Treasury be depleted to the tune of one or two million dollars.

HOUSE.—There was no session of the House to-day

SENATE, April 25.—Several bills were introduced. The bill to enable New Brighton to establish water works, passed; as also a bill to establish a ferry across the river at Freedom in Beaver county. The bill to secure farmers against losses of horses and cattle by railroads in Beaver county, passed. About fifty Senate private bills passed. The bill to pay the Border Raid claims, passed second reading. This bill provides for a careful revision of claims by two Commissioners in York, two in Franklin, two in Adams, two in Cumberland and Perry, and two in Fulton and Bedford to be appointed by the Court of Common Pleas, the Governor appointing competent counsel to represent the Commonwealth, when the Governor and State Treasurer shall issue certificates of indebtedness, countersigned by the Auditor General and exempt from all taxation except of the United States. The State Treasurer shall annually appropriate one hundred and seventy thousand dollars to pay the interest on these certificates until liquidated by the general government, the whole amount not to exceed two millions eight hundred thousand dollars.

HOUSE.—The bill incorporating the Pittsburgh and Economy Railroad passed. Nothing further of interest.

SENATE, April 26.—Several bills were introduced. The joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution making the State Treasurer elective, passed. Rutan's Marriage bill was defeated; but afterwards reconsidered and postponed. The bill authorizing the election of City school Superintendents in cities and boroughs embracing a population of 7,000, or more, passed. The debate on the Border Raid bill occupied the time until adjournment.

HOUSE.—The Pittsburgh and Economy [illegible] bill was killed on second reading by a tie vote—41 to 41. A two hours debate occurred on the bill relative to the Philadelphia registry law.

SENATE, April 27.—The Border Raid bill, was amended and passed. Mr. Rutan opposed it in a speech. The discussion occupied most of the day. A bill to pay members extra after May 1st, was referred to Finance Committee.

HOUSE.—There was a debate on the bill to repeal the special exemption tax on certain property of corporations who in any way derive income therefrom, and the bill passed second reading. The bill allowing extra pay to members passed. The bill from the Senate providing it shall not be necessary in indictments for involuntary manslaughter to define the means and instrument causing death, passed. The joint resolution from the Senate, directing the Attorney General to issue a scire facias against the Erie Railway to build a bridge over the Delaware River, passed. The bill from the Senate, changing the terms of the Supreme Court for the western and northern districts, fixing the third Monday of September in the former to last for ten weeks, passed finally and went to the Governor. The joint resolution originating in the House against the income tax, passed finally. The bill from the Senate authorizing any three persons to form a Railroad Company to operate five miles, passed. The bill originating in the House, authorizing manufacturing establishments to build two miles of railway to connect the works with other railroads, was killed by a vote of forty-three to forty-three. The House bill repealing all special laws exempting real estate from taxation, was discussed till adjournment.

SENATE, April 28.—A bill relating to elections was introduced containing a Democratic snake relative to Philadelphia registration; but it was discovered in time to prevent its passage on suspension of the rules. Mr. Rutan's bill relative to clandestine marriages, with an amendment making Clergymen and Justices liable only where they knowingly and wilfully marry minors without the parents consent. The bill changing the terms of the Supreme Court in northern and western counties passed.

HOUSE.—The bill incorporating the Masonic Home of Pa., passed. A resolution tendering the hospitalities of the House to President Grant was adopted. Both Houses adjourned till Monday.

THE attention of those desiring homes in a pleasant location is directed to the advertisement in to-day's paper of the Great Excursion from Pittsburgh to Leetonia and return. This property is very desirable and we advise our readers to go to the sale. The celebrated Great Western Brass Band of Pittsburgh will accompany the excursion.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28, '71

The suit of the Atlantic Cable Company against Uncle Sam for cable dispatches in the Alaska negotiation, will commence in the Court of Claims on next Monday. The Cable company is sanguine that they will win.

Our Government is about to make an effort with the Canadian Government for the release of the Fenians now remaining in prison in Canada.

There is much dissatisfaction exhibited on the part of the various claim agents here at Washington with the course pursued by the Southern Claim Commission. It was anticipated generally by the claim agents, that the action of the Commission would be final as far as the Government was concerned, and it was only necessary to satisfy the Commission of the validity of a claim to assure the claimant a settlement, but it now appears that the judgment of the Commission is only an indication of future action, and the Commission acts in a double capacity,—that of judges and attorneys for the Government. [illegible] filed, aggre[illegible] two and a half millions of dollars. It will be remembered that the Commission is only [illegible] stores and supplies actually furnished the army, and no notice whatever is taken of claims for seizures unless ordered by a competent officer of the army, for the use in the army, or for any damage or depredation committed by the army.

Census report, revised, full and complete, is expected to be in by the first of next month. It will doubtless exceed, by far, the report ten years since. It will show, that of the 109,199 inhabitants of Washington, there were born in foreign countries, 13,557; in the United States, 60,038 white, 35,391 colored, 13 Indians. Of the native-born population, 8,120 white and 9,272 colored people are natives of Maryland; 5,591 white and 14,263 colored of Virginia, and over a thousand whites from Massachusetts. The foreign born population includes natives of almost every country in the world.

Two of the ladies whose names the board of registration for our late election refused to place upon the lists of voters, have entered suits against the registers. They claim five hundred dollars each as damages, alleging that they are citizens of the United States, of proper age, residents, and entitled to vote in the District of Columbia. Probably there is no other place in the whole country where there are so formidably array of women's rights people as in Washington, and they seem determined to test the case of their right to vote here, cost what it may. Hon. A. J. Riddle, a prominent lawyer here, and formerly a Member of Congress from Ohio, has been retained as their legal adviser.

FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT.

One of the most certain indications of a bad cause, is to find its partisans forced to the necessity of making use of falsehoods, artifices to sustain it. Of this nature are the calumnies and misrepresentations invented, and disseminated by the Democratic leaders against the financial policy of the present administration. While on the one hand they disclaim against the Republican party on account of the war debt, and consequent taxation, corruption in office, and misappropriation of public funds; on the other they raise a hue and cry against the exciting financial policy, by which, they admit, the debt is being rapidly diminished, thus refuting their own allegations of dishonesty on the part of those entrusted with the management of the national finances.

A proposition to change present burdens to the shoulders of others, has in all times and countries been a highly popular and comfortable proceeding, especially among the rabble. The Democratic leaders counted upon this in 1868, when they made the generous proposition to pay off the entire national debt with greenbacks, and thus make money plenty, and at the same time relieve the people from the payment of the interest. This very original and fanciful plan for settling financial difficulties and making money abundant, found a large number of advocates among those who had justified secession and opposed carrying on the war, who had lost their fortunes by embarking in the Confederate cause, or who, being aliens or of foreign birth, cared little for the good name or fame of the country, provided they could dwell here cheaply; to which classes might, with great justice and propriety, be added to the whole tribe of SANS CULOTTS, who having neither visible nor invisible means of support, find great pleasure in the contemplation of any prospect of a change from the existing order of things, well knowing that they can lose nothing in any event.

Fortunately, the great inteligent conscientious majority in 1868, could not be deceived by this thinly disguised repudiation scheme, and it is for them now to consider, whether in the future the proper basis of financial management, will be to stop reducing the debt, dismiss the present honesty officials who advocat its contraction, and turn the whole machinery over to democratic and confederate custody, or to continue the present policy of applying an honestly collected revenue to the liquidation of our honestly incurred obligations, thus sustaining the public credit and good name, and keeping the country upon its present sound financial basis.

THE DEMOCRATIC ADDRESS.

It was a favorite saying of an old colored man living down in Kentucky, that "Blessed are those who expect nuffin, for they aint goine to be disappointed," but with regard to the manifesto of the Democratic leaders in Congress, it was different. Its forthcoming had been proclaimed in the East, South, North and West; on the hill-top, and in the valley. Yes the great flash of the Democracy—wonderful document—about which so much had been said, and of which so much has been expected, and which was intended to startle the whole country with its sublime wisdom was coming. It was not expected that any new principle would be embodied in the forthcoming prolamation, because the Democratic party, to be true to its best interest, must be true to its past record, and there the rub, the new issues it dare not champion; old ones it dare not cast aside.

CHIEL.

THE undersigned members of the Bar, of the county of Beaver, deem it due to Dr. W. C. Shurlock, to state that he had nothing to do with the preparation, nor is he in any wise responsible for the passage of the act entitled "An Act establishing a Law Library in Beaver county for the use of the citizens thereof, and appropriating fines, forfeiture, penalties, and forfeited recognizances in said County for its use," except so far as he deferred in its passage to the unanimous judgment of the Court and Bar.

Those of us who do not belong to Dr. Shurlock's political party, earnestly opposed his election in 1870, and if he is renominated in 1871, we shall again claim and exercise the right to oppose him; but candor and fair dealing require us to say that his merits or demerits as a legislator should be passed upon without reference to his action on the "Library Bill." It is not our purpose here to discuss, or defend the law in question, or correct the many false statements that have been made in regard to its object and provisions, time will prove its utility and that the object for which it was passed, can be accomplished under the management of a judicious Committee without imposing any perceptibe burden upon the people of Beaver county.

A rare chance to secure a home or profitable investment.

Leetonia is situated on the line of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago railway, at the crossing of the Niles and New Lisbon Railroad.

This new manufacturing region, from being located in the best coal field for smelting and manufacturing iron, must in a short time become the rival of Pittsburgh in the manufactory of iron and its products—the Leetonia coal and coke being much superior in producing a good quality of iron—and located in the finest agricultural portion of the State—houses, rents and living being much cheaper, must induce many blast furnaces and rolling mills to be located at this point.

Also, having large railroad facilities—the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad, Niles and New Lisbon, to the Lakes, and the Baltimore, Pittsburgh [illegible] under contract in a short time.

There is already in this city four blast furnaces, turning out over six hundred tons of superior pig-metal weekly; one rolling-mill of large capacity; planing and saw-mills and other manufactories. It is proposed to build a rolling-mill to manufacture railroad iron; also, a nail factory is provided for, and a paper-mill, steel-mill and several other manufacturing improvements. Being the first division of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago railway, and having cheap and superior manufacturing facilities, it must induce the railroads coming in there to place their work shops at this point, and this now flourishing town must outstrip Altoona of the Pennsylvania Central as a railroad city. To iron-workers and mechanics—Now is your time to secure a cheap house at your own price in Leetonia—the now vital new manufacturing city, where you can have a healthy home pure water and cheap living. A handsome Residence and Grounds. Fine Spring and Out buildings, will be sold on the premises, day of sale. You are all invited to the great sale where you can determine for yourselves. For sale by

VINEGAR BITTERS!

Hundreds of Thousands

Bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, [illegible]

THEY ARE NOT A VILE

FANCY DRINK.

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

ALT. EXT. OR

Golden Medical Discovery

CURES DISEASES OF THE THROAT, LUNGS, LIVER & BLOOD.

In the wonderful medicine to which the afflicted are above pointed for relief, the discoverer believes he has combined in harmony more of Nature's most sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The evidence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful purifying and invigorating medicine.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy. For the cure of Habitual Constipation of the bowels it is a never failing remedy, and those who have used it for this purpose are loud in its praise.

The proprietor offers $1,000 reward for a medicine that will equal it for the cure of all the diseases for which it is recommended.

Sold by druggists at $1 per bottle. Prepared by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Sole Proprietor, at his Chemical Laboratory, 133 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y. [illegible] for a pamphlet.

A Horse Thief, giving his name as John Smith, was arrested in Economy last week, by Messrs. Briggs and Porter, who lodged him in the Beaver jail. A horse had been stolen from a man named Adam Neiruth, living in Wayne county, Ohio, on Saturday night of week before last. Messrs. Briggs and Porter of Industry, obtained a description of the horse, and traced it through Rochester to Economy, where they arrested the thief, who will await a requisition from the Governor of Ohio, and be taken to Wayne Co., for trial. It is said his real name is Hobald Fath.

CARPETS! CARPETS!! CARPETS!!!—A very large stock of the most desirable patterns of Carpets, as cheap as the cheapest; at B. Mulheim's, Bridgewater

On last Friday Jimmie Duncan of Holmes Co., Ohio, left his plow and horses in the field in which he was plowing, with two little boys to take care of them while he would go to the house just a little distant to "take in" a few refreshments. He had hardly left the field when his team took fright, and started in their wild career, jerking the plow over stones and stumps not slow,—the plow, at times, higher than the horses' heads,—presenting a Sut Love-good scene, while poor Jimmie, with wide stretched eyes and hair standing on ends, like the quills of an excited African Porcupine, started after the team, gathering the fragments of the plow as he went—"it was all that he could do." The team ran but a short distance and was stopped; fortunately the horses escaped injury, but Jimmie declares he never knew there were so many pieces to a plow before.

Low Spirits.—Exercise for the body, occupation for the mind, these are the grand constituents of health and happiness, the cardinal points upon which everything turns. Motion seems to be a great preserving principle of nature, to which even inanimate things are subject; for the winds, waves, the earth itself, are restless, and the waving of trees, shrubs and flowers is known to be an essential part of their economy. A habit of taking several hours' exercise every day, if possible, in the open air, if not under cover, will be almost certain to secure one exemption from disease, as well as attacks from low spirits, or ennui—that monster who is ever waylaying the rich and indolent. Low spirits cannot exist in the atmosphere of bodily and mental activity.

One of our exchanges very sensibly remarks that people who "would not die in spring time," should exercise a great deal of caution in regard to the taking down of stoves and the laying aside of warm undergarments.

Suicide.—Mrs. George Ellet, residing near Prosperity, Washington county, committed suicide on Wednesday morning last by hanging herself in one of the attic rooms of the house. No cause can be assigned for the rash act.

NOTICE EXTRAORDINARY.—we would beg leave to state to the public that the place to get your Clothes made, is at S. & J. Snellenburg's, Broadway, New Brighton. Also agents for the Eliptic Family Sewing Machine. Come and see it.

Prepare for the Mammoth Combination.—Rosston, Springer & Henderson's great mastodon menagerie, gigantic circus, colossal caravan and museum together with the Ali Ben Abdallah troupe of real Bedouin Arabs, will exhibit in ROCHESTER, ON WEDNESDAY, MAY 10TH, 1871.

The management announce for the season of 1871 not only the largest but the most attractive, novel, original and instructive public amusement ever offered in this country. The great Ali Ben Abdallah of genuine Bedouin Arabs, or "Sons of the Desert" (fourteen in number), acknowledged by the European and American press as giving the most startling, rare and wonderful performances of any people on earth. There extraordinary feats, both on the ground and in mid air, surpass both description and belief.

The vast department of zoology is composed of the rare and curious animals of Europe, Asia, Africa, North and South America, Australia, New Holland and Ceylon, including ornithological selections of the best specimens of tropical and oriental birds, and embracing the finest collection of trained horses, the smallest ponies and the best performing lions in the world. Among the specialities are a herd of elephants and a drove of camels and dromedaries.

A mammoth caravan of twenty-three massive cages, it is a stupendos combination, involving an investment of half a million dollars, requiring an army of disciplined men in its service, employing a multitude of horses and a train of wagons, dens and cages over a mile long for its transportation through the country. There will be a grand scenic parade on the morning of the exhibition.

The circus will develop a cavalcade of noble steeds, comprising Arabian Belgian, Hungarian, French and domestic thoroughbred, in connection with the most daring male and female riders, acrobats, gymnasts, trapeze and general performers.

TO GENTS, ONLY.—Gents come to S. & J. Snellenburg's, bring your ladies with you and see the Eliptic Sewing Machine work; it will astonish you. S. & J. Snellenburg, Broadway, New Brighton.

Romance.—Who does not revert with pleasure to his school-boy days? Recall the little old school-house on the hillside, with green fields in front, and primitive forests in the rear? The spectacled pedagogue, and ruddy-faced scholars; the girl that smiled upon him so sweetly from behind one side of her book; the little billets, smuggled from one to another! Ah, those were halcyon days! It delights one to call them up and ponder over them. We venture there is not one in twenty who has arrived at the years of maturity who has not had his school days' love. How few have realized their childhood's dream!

We have been led to the above reflections from noticing the marriage of Mr. Stephen Sippy, of Richland county Wisconsin, to Amity Bryant, of North Beaver township, Lawrence county, published in the last New Castle Gazette and Democrat. Mr. Sippy went west about forty years ago; and recently came to the conclusion that, "it was not good for man to dwell alone." He remembered his school-boy love; wrote to her—having first learned she was an unmarried spinster—and asked her to give up all, "and become bone of his bone, and flesh of his flesh." The lass of fifty years, immediately started for Wisconsin, and the above marriage notice, announces the result. May they be happy—they have loved long.

MAY! beautiful May! has come at last. S. & J. Snellenburg's new stock of clothes, doeskins and cassimeres. Also a large stock of hats, caps and furnishing goods, have arrived and are now selling low, at S. & J. Snellenburg's, Broadway, New Brighton.

New Brighton Items.—On Tuesday of last week, Dr. Simpson's horse, attached to a buggy in which was the Doctor, ran off, precipitating him to the ground and demolishing the buggy. The Doctor was not seriously injured.

—The funeral of Rev. Dr. Reeves took place on Saturday, 22d ult., from the Methodist Protestant Church of New Brighton, attended by a large concourse of people. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. D. Jones. Dr. Reeves died in Pittsburgh on the 20th ultimo, and his remains taken to New Brighton for interment. He was in the sixty-ninth year of his his age; highly respected and beloved by those having the pleasure of his acquaintance.

—On Monday of last week, Arkroyd Dewhurst was knocked from the railroad track upon which he was walking, by a locomotive stricking him on the back. This occurred about half way between Rochester and New Brighton. Mr. Dewhurst was considerable bruised, but able to walk about during the latter part of last week. Persons who will risk the chances of pedestrianism on railways must suffer the consequences.

To Drive off Rats.—We find the following going the rounds of exchanges: "Take a bunch of matches and soak them over night in a teacupful of water; then take out the matches, and thicken the water with Indian meal to a thick dough, adding a spoonful of sugar and a little lard. Lay about the premises where the rats are and nothing else, will get it. Is is decidedly the best exterminator extant. Give it a trial."

THE WORLD moves and so does the public. While moving up Broadway, New Brighton, drop in and see S. & J. Snellenburg's New Stock. They have just received a new supply from the East, which surpasses anything we have ever seen in the Clothing line. Also Agents for the Elliptic Family Sewing Machine.

Struck by Lightning.—On last Thursday evening during the storm which prevailed in this vicinity, the dwelling house of Mr. Milo Somers, about one-half mile below Beaver, was struck by lightning, and the chimneys, roof, &c., somewhat damaged. None of the inmates were injured.

Dupres & Benedict's Minstrel nigger show has sued the Alliance Local for $5,000 for saying something about their concern they did not like. How many men hate the truth.

The Legislature of Ohio has passed a law compelling of mill dams to construct chutes through which fish can pass up on their spring journeys. These are to be completed within one year from the passage of the act.

Dwelling Burned.—The house of Mr. Jeremiah Hennen, about one mile from Jollytown, Greene county, was entirely consumed by fire recently. The Republican says:

Mr. Hennen was absent attending Court and it was a sorrowful sight on returning to find himself and family homeless. The facts appear to be about as follows: During Tuesday night of last week, Mr. Hennen's mother, an aged and infirm lady, discovered the house to be on fire; and alarming the rest of the family, all succeeded in making their escape, saving scarcely anything. The barn and outbuildings being in close proximity, next took fire and were soon wrapped in flames, destroying much grain and meats. The house was of logs and had been weatherboarded and fitted up, making a commodious, neat and comfortable dwelling. It is estimated by persons that three thousand dollars would scarcely repair the damage, and will prove a severe loss to Mr. Hennen. The fire is supposed to have originated from hot ashes deposited in a wooden bucket and left in the kitchen. Persons cannot be too careful with this destructive element, and this should prove another warning.

THE secret of being good looking—polished boots, clean, shaved face, combed hair, and clothing made by S. & J. Snellenburg, who by the way are receiving their elegant assortment of spring goods. Those in need of garments should call on the above firm on Broadway, New Brighton.

The Lecture of Dr. Hodge on last Monday evening on the separation and re-union of the human race was quite entertaining, and the lecturer fully sustained his reputation here, as a clear-headed, thoughtful man. His lecture closed the series.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—On and after May 6th and until the 1st of September the County Commissioners, will meet only on Saturday of each week, at their office in Beaver. JOHN M'GOUN, Clerk. ma3;tf] (Radical please copy.)

How to Rest.—The best mode of resting when fatigued depends upon the cause of the fatigue and the condition of the person at the time. There is one thing, however, which will always rest a tired person, and that is a sponge or towel bath over the entire surface. Of course, the temperature of the water and the vigor and amount of the rubbing must be graduated to the strength of the person. It is generally best if given by a second person. When the fatigue is mental, arising from over exertion of the brain, the muscles should be called into action, as by walking, horseback riding, rowing, playing ball, pitching quoits, gymnastics, &c. General muscular fatigue is quickly relieved by lying on the face and having some one rub and percuss the back vigorously. Also, but less readily, by lying flat on the back upon a hard couch or bed, or upon the floor, with the hands back of or under the head, but the head not otherwise raised, and taking full deep breaths. Local muscular fatigue may be relieved by rubbing and percussing the part, or by changing position and bringing other parts of the body into action.

WHO would go about in rags when you can get Spring Suits made up to order at R. Steinfeld's for $15; and black cloth Suits at $30 and upwards? You will find at this old reliable stand some of the very latest styles of Coatings, Vestings and Cassimeres, also an extensive stock of Ready-made Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods at very low figures.

Last week the Greene County Court shut down effectually on the license question and refused to renew those which had expired or grant any new ones. By way of revenge all the hotel keepers in Waynesburg shut up their establishments and utterly refused to give entertainment either to man or beast. The publicans in that town declare that it is folly to expect them to run their houses without whisky. Whether the dead lock has opened or not we have not ascertained.

HAVE you seen those fine Poplins in all colors and the latest novelty in dress goods? the Spring Styles in Lustre Mohairs, which M. Schiff offers at very low figures? Also a splendid assortment in Shawls and Sacks, Black and Colored Silk. You can buy ten per cent. cheaper at M. Schiff's than any Pittsburgh store, as he is determined this season to give no one an excuse to make their purchases away from home. Some of those Curtain Nettings at 40 cents per yard are still left; also some of those fine Lace Curtains.

Serious Fall.—Miss Martha Carson, a lady residing with her brother-in-law Squire Howe, in East Finley township, Washington county, was thrown from a horse a short distance from the residence of the latter on Monday evening, the 17th inst. She was on her way at the time to visit a niece who was ill, and it is supposed the horse shied and unseated her. Squire Howe, who was walking some distance in the rear and out of sight, was first made acquainted with the casualty by meeting the riderless horse galloping homewards. When found the lady was insensible and very severely cut and bruised, though fortunately no bones were broken. Different parts of her body received serious contusions, her head was cut open to the skull and one ear badly mutilated. She is wholly unable to give any account of the cause of the accident. Her injuries, though serious, are not considered dangerous.

Found Drowned.—On the 14th of this month the dead body of an unknown man was found in the Ohio river, near Industry, this county. An inquest was held over the body by Benjamin Todd, esq., and others whose verdict was accidental drowning. Deceased was about 40 or 45 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches in height, had on a cassimere sack coat, and on his person were $12.15 in money. From appearances he had been in the water about two months.

On the 18th of the same month, the body of another man whose name is unknown, was found near the same place, and an inquest held over the body by the same justice and other gentlemen of the neighborhood, who returned a verdict of accidental drowning. Deceased was about 22 or 23 years of age. Had on a brown frock coat, a pair of new brogue shoes, and a scar on his neck healed over. Had a little change in his pocket. Deceased had been in the water about two months; appeared to be a German.

In early days, the great drawback to raising sheep was their liability to fall a prey to wolves. In order to banish these pests, the Legislature in its wisdom offered a premium in money for every wolf's scalp presented to the proper officer in the various counties of the Commonwealth. Of late years—since the banishment and destruction of wolves—dogs have taken to killing sheep. Almost every county paper in the north western part of the State, records the destruction of sheep by dogs. Week before last, Mr. J. R. Davidson, of Big Beaver township, Lawrence Co., had thirteen killed, and Mr. James Wilson, of the same township, had forty killed on the same night. Ought not the Legislature to pass a law fixing a premium on dog scalps? Something should be done. We must either dispense with dogs or mutton.

Homicide.—On Wednesday afternoon last the citizens of our quiet borough were somewhat startled at the news that a man had been found hanging to a tree within about half a mile of Vanport this county. Coroner Corbus was summoned, and held an inquest on the body. It appeared to have been hanging to the tree for a day or two. One eye had evidently been injured prior to the hanging; but no other bodily injury was found upon the corpse. The body hung near the trunk of the tree, with one foot resting, not solidly, upon the ground. There were no papers found upon the body by which his name could be ascertained. He was a stranger to all present at the inquest. He was seen in company with another man entering the Rochester Bridge on Monday of last week; they were intoxicated, and appeared to be quarreling. He was 5½ feet high; sandy whiskers; hair, light brown; jean coat and pants; black vest; heavy shoes; brown twilled shirt; black felt hat; skin fair, from 35 to 40 years of age. The jury rendered a verdict "that he came to his death from strangulation by hanging—whether at his own hands or by the hands of another, or others, unknown to this jury," &c.

On Monday morning, the wife of a certain Dr. Kimball of this city, for reasons best known to the parties themselves, concluded to leave the Doctor, and accordingly took herself and child to the depot, and purchasing a ticket, seated herself in the Pittsburgh train. Her irate husband followed swiftly, and arriving at the depot before the train had left, attempted to take the child from her. His efforts in this direction were frustrated by the passengers, who took sides with the lady and put the Doctor out of the car. A cry was raised to treat him to a dose of eggs, but he disappeared, and soon after telegraphed to have his wife detained at Rochester, with what result we have not yet ascertained.—New Castle Guardian.

Owl Shooting.—Col. R. Walton of Industry, the famous Beaver county Nimrod, should look well to his laurels, as we find an account in the Washington Reporter of some sharp practice with the gun in that county, by Mr. J. P. Reynolds, who, while out gunning recently in the pine region that skirts Raccoon Creek, about a mile below the village of Cardville, he heard a rustling overhead and looking up saw two enormous owls in the branches of the tree. He immediately raised his gun and taking sight at one of them fired, but at the same instant the other started to fly and coming within range both fell to the ground pierced by the same bullet. One measured four feet six inches, and the other four feet ten inches. Those who think of competing for the shot gun had better look well to their fame, as we understand the hero of this exploit can't help shooting when he sees an owl.

The Divorce Business in Pittsburgh.—The divorce business in Pittsburgh is exceedingly lively. One day last week the applications were filed. They were as follows:

Walter S. Hays, applied for a divorce from his wife, Mary S. Hays. The parties were married in December, 1865, but have not lived together since July, 1868. The appliant charges his wife with adultery and uses it as a ground for divorce.

Charles M. Green, carpenter, married August 2d, 1864, desires a release from his wife Elizabeth, on the ground of desertion. She left his house March 1st, and took with her all the family effects, and as he has not seen her since, desires to be legally relieved from her. Subpoena ordered.

By her next friend Henry Alles, Annie E. Bayer complains that her husband, Charles Bayer, has deserted her, and as she can get on much better without him, she asks to do so legally. The usual document allowed.

FINANCIAL.—The attention of our readers is directed to the card in this week's paper, of Messrs. Jas. T. Brady & Co., well known Bankers, of Pittsburgh, Pa. Messrs. Brady & Co., are Financial Agents for the United States, and will give all required information in relation to investments in U. S. Bonds, and other securities.

Interest paid on deposits, subject to check, without notice.

A Word to Candidates and their Friends.—For years past, it has been customary for the friends of candidates to publish complimentary notices of their favorites in the county papers. We do not object to the custom, but will give notice in advance that these communications in favor of particular persons must not contain attacks upon other candidates, and must be paid for at the rate of five cents per line at the time of insertion. If desirable the names of the writers will be withheld, but we are not to be regarded as endorsing what they say in favor of their candidates.

IN another column will be found the advertisement of S. J. Cross & Co. Their business is large, and they advertise largely. We have heard merchants say that in order to convince people that goods are cheap, a large price must be charged. Messrs. Cross & Co., emphatically deny this assertion. A large and growing trade, such as they enjoy, demands that goods should be sold at a small profit, and they are confident that the better class of customers know what they are buying; hence, they put their goods at rates which satisfy all. Their stock of dry goods, groceries, queensware, hardware and general assortment is extensive; and their courtesy and urbanity toward customers warrants the extensive patronage they are receiving from the public.

Young Men's Christian Association Anniversary.—The anniversary exercises of the Young Men's Christian Association of Beaver were held in the M. E. Church of this place last Sabbath evening. A very large audience was in attendance. The President of the Association, Prof. R. T. Taylor, gave an interesting account of the operations of the organization during the year just closed.

The expenditures were about six hundred dollars. After his report was read, addresses were delivered by Revs. D. P. Lowary and J. C. Wilson, both of whom urged the community to give the Association all the encouragement and aid in their power. A collection in aid of the Association was then taken up, and a considerable sum of money was subscribed.

The "Allegheny Whistle," it appears, has reached New England under a new name. In that locality it is known as the "Devil's fiddle. The sentiments of the Puritans towards this visitor from the Middle States may be gathered from the following ordinance passed by a number of the Yankee towns:

"All persons who shall hereafter disturb the public peace by means of an instrument known as the 'Devil's fiddle,' 'Squaker,' 'Rooster,' or any kindred instrument will be charged with committing a common nuisance, and will be prosecuted therefor."

The Attorneys of the Beaver Bar have signed a certificate that Dr. Shurlock had nothing to do with, and is not responsible for the passage of the odious Law Library act of Beaver county, during the present session of the Legislature; "except that he deferred in its passage to the unanimous judgment of the court and bar." Should "the unanimous judgment of the blacksmiths of Beaver county ask for a law appropriating money to purchase them tools, would Mr. Shurlock defer to it and permit a bill to pass for that purpose?" He might as consistently. BUTLER.

OUR ORIGINAL TEA STORE.—J. A. Robinson, proprietor of the above well known Tea House, No. [illegible], Pittsburgh, Pa., offers a large and well selected stock of Fine Teas, Coffees, Spices, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, all of which have been selected with great care, expressly for family use. See advertisement in to-day's paper.

EDITOR ARGUS:—The Presbytery of Shenango met in Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa., on the 25th inst. There was quite a full attendance both of ministers and elders. Last fall the majority of the churches within the bounds of the Presbytery were vacant, now all the vacant churches have called pastors, except Beaver Falls, Sharpsville and Middlesex. Pulaski and Hopewell churches presented a call for a pastor at a salary of $1,200 and parsonage. Sharon presents a call at a salary of $1,500; New Castle second, give their pastor elect $1,800. A Committee was appointed to ascertain how far the 4th Commandment was applicable to employees at Iron Furnaces. This Committee to report at the session of Presbytery to be held in Pulaski, on the 2nd Tuesday of June. On Tuesday evening Dr. Junkin preached a sermon "on the Jews," in which he took the position that Carnal Israel would be restored to nationality in Palestine; a rather untenable position, as the Doctor stated that he had a satchel full of documents to prove it, though he had not time to examine them since he had procured them. Their examination may lead him to a different conclusion. The Doctor thought the subject afforded him the opportunity to say that Slavery should have been abolished gradually in the United States. He found great fault with the Providence of God in removing so suddenly every vestige of that "sum of all villainy," which so long stained our country's fair escutcheon. Had the God of Providence consulted the Doctor, he would have doubtless advised a different course from that which the Allwise chose to pursue. The Doctor is highly gifted and his utterances sparkle with the scintillations of genius. As a theologian, he is sound to the core, heterodoxy finds in him an inveterate foe. The heresies of the dark ages, revamped, burnished and palmed off by the socialists of the day, as progressive developements of science, falsely so called, are dissected by the Doctor, and their subtle fallacies exposed to the gaze of all sincere enquirers after truth. But, when the Doctor resurrects the dead issues of the past, and attempts to clothe with sinews and flesh the hideous skeleton of human slavery, and to breathe into it the breath of life; when he, in lugubrious tones, mourns that the hideous monster came to his end by decapitation and not by slow decline, all the prejudice of his nature is aroused and he is anything but a safe guide, and it would doubtless be preaching the gospel—the good news—to preach the opposite of all the Doctor preached on the subject of human slavery in the "sermon on the Jews." Great men are not always wise. In a recent charge, given at the installation of a pastor, the Doctor presented a brilliant and unique idea which should be treasured as important truth: "There is a difference between preaching and mere teaching. Any neighbor may inform us that we will be called as jurors or witnesses to court; but that information does not bind us to go. The summons of the officers of the law imposes a peculiar legal obligation, which we disregard at our peril. You are a herald of Messiah, my brother, with authority from the King and final Judge, to summon men to do their duty in the kingdom of God. You have authority to require them in the name of the Commonwealth of Israel and its Chief Magistrate, to surrender the weapons of rebellion, return to allegiance to their lawful Sovereign, and perform all the duties pertaining to good citizens of the Commonwealth. These things speak, and exhort and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee." More anon. WYANDOTTE.
Rochester, April 29, 1871.

Husband and Wife.—We commend this bit of advice, which we find in one of our exchanges, to the newly married. The charge may not be thrown away upon those who have journeyed in wedlock's fetters many years: "Preserve the privacies of your house, your marriage state and your hearts from father, mother, sister, brother and all the world. Between you two let no third person come to share the secret joy or grief that belongs to yourself alone. Do you two, with God's help, build your own quiet world, not allowing your dearest earthly friend to be the confident of aught that concerns your domestic peace. Let moments of alienation, if they occur, be veiled and forgotten in moments and years of faithful, devoted love, but never let the wall of another's confidence be built up between you and your wife's or your husband's heart. Promise this to yourselves and each other. Renew the vow at every temptation; you will find your account in it; your souls will grow, as it were, together, and at last become as one. Ah, if many a young pair had on their wedding day known this all-important secret, how many marriages would have been happier than, alas, they are!"

NO HOCUS-POCUS.—It seems to be a matter of wonder to many persons, and even to some medical men, how any thing like a correct diagonsis of diseases can be made from examination of the urine.

This wonder ceases with the latter, however, as soon as they learn the fundamental principles upon which these examinations are based, and become practically acquainted with the varied chemical constituents and characteristic appearances of that fluid as voided in the different classes of disease.

When any organ or part of the body becomes diseased it gives out more than its accustomed share of particles from that part. These separated particles are carried out of the body through the medium of the kidneys, and may by chemical analysis and microscopical examination be definitely ascribed to the precise locality whence they are derived.

Those are practical facts; not merely of value in ordinary cases alone, but scientific men, Todd, Bennet, Queckot, and others, have placed on record numerous instances wherein the correct diagnosis in obscure cases depended solely upon these kind of investigations.

We ourselves, during an experience of over twenty years' practice, have had many individual cases wherein the examination of the urinary secretion alone revealed the true nature of the disease, after all the other well-known methods of the very best physicians of the country had signally failed.

When we propose to detect diseases by an examination of the urine alone, being prepared as we are at our office, No. 132 Grant street, Pittsburgh, with all the chemical and microscopic apparatus for testing it in the most scientific manner, we base our proposition not upon clairvoyance, spiritualism, hocus-pocus, or legerdemain, but upon the incontrovertible facts, and make our deductions in accordance with the immutable laws of science.

Indeed, it is these facts alone that give to our peculiar system its true value that stamps it as a science. For that only is scientific which is based upon incontrovertible facts.

DRS. OLDSHUE,

MR. EDITOR:—I see that James H. Douds, late of the 140th Pa. Vols., now a resident of Borough township, is a candidate for nomination at the primary election on May 27th, for the office of County Commissioner. I have known Mr. Douds both as a soldier and a citizen. As the former he was brave, patriotic and vigilant; and in the latter capacity his character stands irreproachable. He is competent for the office he seeks, and I think eminently deserving the support of the great Republican party. AN OLD SOLDIER.

A BOLD ATTEMPT.

BY A LATE OFFICER OF THE REGULAR ARMY.

"A horse! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!"

Shortly before the close of the war the 4th Army Corps was sent to guard the passes of North-east Tennessee, the object being to head off the army under Gen. Lee in case that able commander should evacuate Richmond and returning through the Valley of East Tennessee, attempt to make a new stand in the South-west, where Gen. Kirby Smith still had a considerable force at his disposal. The Division with which I was serving was placed at Bull's Gap, the other Division of the Corps to the North and South of us, the three crossing a line of 100 miles, but with a railroad in our rear in full working order, capable of concentration within a few hours at any given point. Our position was a small valley, covered in front by a high ridge, thro' which the very picturesque pass we were guarding made its way. In our rear were long hog back hills, steep and narrow on their tops, and denuded for the most part of trees. On these were the various Brigade Headquarters. The troops lying encamped on the plain at their foot. The General commanding the Division occupied as his Headquarters with his personal staff, a large house (the only one in the neighborhood) at the foot of one of the hills before mentioned; the remainder of the staff, the summit of the hill. Opposite the house, across a road, were large barns and stables where our horses and the horses of the escort were kept. In a field close by, the Headquarters Guard, consisting of two companies of a new and raw Michigan regiment were camped. Over the stables was placed a sentinel, more for the purpose however of seeing that none of the horses got loose or met with accident than from fear of attack or robbery. In fact, the approaching close of the war, and the absence of any force in that region capable of opposing us had made us all rather careless, so much so, that our pickets who occupied the ridge in our front were placed at such long intervals that no two of them could see or converse with each other, and stranger still the officer in charge of the pickets had directed that no issue should be made of ball cartridge to either pickets or camp guard, who were consequently unable to defend themselves or give the alarm in case of attack, thus inviting by their condition the attempt of which I am about to relate the particulars and the result.

Among the occupants of the house used by the General as his Headquarters, was found a young man, good looking and intelligent, whose loyalty was excessive, and whose hatred of Rebels was not surpassed by Brownlow himself. He told marvelous tales of his escape from Rebel impressing officers, of his living for months concealed in the mountains and of the hardships he had undergone for his love of the Union Cause. He made himself very agreeable to the General and his aids, and there being literally nothing to do, his society soon became almost indispensible to them. He accompanied them everywhere on their rides, listened to all their conversations and became as well informed of the condition of affairs in the Division as the General himself. From the above it will be seen that although ours were veteran troops, discipline had became greatly relaxed, and though the approach of danger would have soon restored the Division to its former high reputation, we were then peculiarly open to any daring enterprise of the enemy, if not on too large a scale.

One dark night about 12 o'clock, when our whole force was burried in profound repose, the camp guards themselves it is shrewdly suspected sharing in the general oblivion, we on our elevated hog back ridge were awakened by pistol shots fired in quick succession, seeming from the sound at the foot of the hill, where our horses were stabled. Quickly dressing, revolver in hand, we hurried down the hill. I have said the night was dark. It was very dark. Imagine a group of excited individuals suddenly awakened from sleep, knowing nothing, fearing they knew not what, hurrying down a hill about as steep as the roof of a gothic cottage, overrun with briers, and to make considerable more pleasant, with here and there a stump or tree invisible in the pitchy darkness. Imagine the curses, not loud but deep, as some fellow catching spur in a running vine, pitches headlong down the hill, his rapid course checked up only by some friendly (?) tree or stump. Picture him, as rising, bruised, scratched, and bewildered, he hardly knows why he is there, the silence only broken by the muttered oaths of some similar unfortunate, or the plunging footstep of others more lucky who keep the uneven tenor of their way. Guided by these last, three of us who had rolled or tumbled to the bottom of the steep, made our way to the stables, now in profound stillness, except the stamping of the horses not yet recovered from their alarm.

After a little, procuring a lighted lantern, we made search for the cause of the late disturbance. We presently found our unlucky sentinel gagged and tied. Releasing him he informed us in Teutonic English, that he had been attacked by a large number of men, how many he could not say, who after a heroic resistance on his part, in which he had used his bayonet to great advantage (he believed he had killed several of them) they had succeeded in placing him in the condition in which we found him. He was unable, however, to explain the mystery of the pistol shots as he had no pistol himself, and asserted that none of them were fired at him, but that he had heard them after he was secured, and on the opposite side of the barn. Some six or seven of the horses had been unfastened and were running about loose, but none were missing. After searching vainly for some time for some one else, completely dumbfunded we returned to our Quarters, first doubling the guard over the horses, this time with loaded muskets, once more verifying the adage about locking the stable door after the steed had been stolen.

The next morning the mystery was partially unraveled. At day-break a trail was discovered leading from the barn toward the outposts which, being followed up, disclosed a badly wounded man in a sort of dry ditch close to our picket line. The wounded man was carried to headquarters, lo! who should he be but the General's intelligent friend, the hater of rebels, the East Tennessean whose hairbreadth escapes had so interested the staff and doubtless amused himself as he related his veracious histories. On being interrogated he told a story this time too unreasonable for the belief of his formerly too credulous hearers. Its amount was that, being unable to sleep, he had risen in the night and gone out to get the fresh air; that while walking about he heard a noise at the stables as of a struggle of several men; that he had hurried to the guard, and seeing several men about the stables had fired his revolver at them; that the men returned his fire, one of their bullets striking him in his right thigh and braking the bone; that the men abandoning their project, whatever it was, had dragged him to the place we found him and had there left him to die.—No papers were found on him to discredit his statement, and in absence of other evidence (the sentinel was unable to recognize him) it seemed as if his story would have to be credited and the man restored to liberty. This was not to be, however. One of those shrewd, inquiring fellows, of whom there were so many in our army, who had heard the man's statement, was not by any means satisfied of its truth, and without saying anything to anybody, started out on an independent investigation. Following the trail it was evident that a man had been partly carried and partly dragged all the way from the stables to where our friend had been found, in so much varying his statement.—On examining carefully the ground where our wounded man had been lying, our soldier thought it had been disturbed. He therefore dug carefully and found a pocket-book, which the unfortunate young man with Spartan courage, wounded and weak with the loss of blood as he was, had carefully buried beneath him. In the pocket-book were found papers which conclusively proved him to be a Captain in Vaughn's Cavalry Brigade than in the mountains of North Carolina and in our near neighborhood. Orders were also found directing him to take a select few and with them procure some horses for the command, the mode of obtaining them being left to his discretion. Evidently he was a smart fellow and in the confidence of his commander. Finding that now all was known, and that there was no longer any use in sticking to his former story, he made a clean breast of it. He said that in his search for horses he came to the house of some of his relations, where we found him, in citizen's dress. Seeing that no one had any suspicion of him he determined to remain and if possible ingratiate himself with us. Observing our careless security, the relaxation of discipline among the troops, and our widely distributed line of pickets, and learning that the pickets were put on guard with unloaded muskets, he determined to capture all our headquarter horses, many of them very fine animals, and all of them much better than any in Vaughn's command. In pursuance of this plan he had passed several times through our pickets to assemble his men. On the night in question he had gone out of our lines very early in the evening, had returned with some ten or fifteen of his men, quietly seized and secured the sentinel and was preparing to get off with the horses, several of which they had untied and brought out of the stables. His idea was to mount some and lead the others, and if discovered, by a bold push to get thro' our pickets by a ravine which he had thoroughly reconnoitered. Up to this point all had prospered with him but, thinking he had heard a noise, he had gone around the barn to learn the cause, it seems without the knowledge of his confederates. On his return one of his men mistaking him for a soldier, foolishly fired his revolver at him, the ball taking effect as I have before related. In the panic and before he could make himself known, several shots were fired and the alarm given. Finding their mistake his men endeavored to carry him off, but were finally obliged to abandon him where we found him in order to effect their own escape. The boldness of his enterprise, and his fortitude under great suffering, together with his invariable good humor, created much sympathy for him among both officers and soldiers, and I believe every one was sorry when tried as a spy by a Court Martial, he was found guilty and sentenced to death. After all however his wound proved his salvation, for it having been decided by the Surgeon that his leg must be amputated to save his life (in order I suppose that he might be hung more comfortably), he could not be executed until after recovery from the operation. In the meantime Lee surrendered, the war was over, and it was no longer necessary to put in force the severities of martial law. The last time I heard of him he had recovered from his wound, was pardoned and living in Knoxville, Tennessee, an estimable citizen stumping about in all the dignity of a wooden leg.

Ulcerated Lungs.

The intense anxiety manifested by all those having any disease of the pulmonary organs, is a subject of uncommon interest and solicitude, especially to those afflicted, and their friends, and it behooves all such to seek out the very best remedy obtainable for the relief and cure of such maladies; the very best remedy, without doubt, in all such cases, is DR. KEYSER'S PECTORAL COUGH SYRUP, to be had now in nearly every reputable drug store, at the trifling cost of 75 cents. Its value can hardly be estimated in money, when for so trifling a consideration you can cure an ill which, if allowed to run on, will almost surely fasten on the lungs and produce, in all probability, incurable ulceration. Ulcerated lungs and consumption are of the same class—one means death, unless cured, as well as the other; and when you observe the spittle streaked with blood, and the purulent expectoration, pain in the breast, and hoarseness, look out! They are the harbingers and warnings of danger approaching, and you cannot be too speedy in arresting them. DR. KEYSER'S PECTORAL SYRUP will most effectually eradicate the early symptoms, and hinder the development of more serious disease. DR. KEYSER'S experience and diligence in treating diseases of the lungs, and his thorough knowledge of the human system, has enabled him, in the compounding of his PECTORAL SYRUP, to produce one of the most searching and curative medicines in the country. To be obtained at his great medicine store, 167 Liberty street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Lung examinations daily, from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m., and from 3 until 6, and on Saturdays 7 to 9 at night.

Sellers' Imperial Cough Syrup.

We beg to call to the minds of our readers that this season of the year, above all others, is the one in which they are liable to COUGHS, COLDS, INFLUENZA, &c., whilst the LITTLE ONES are in constant danger of that most alarming and fatal of all diseases, CROUP.

It is, therefore, necessary that every family should provide a positive remedy, one that is ready for use at all times.

SELLERS' COUGH SYRUP you will find a sure and speedy remedy for coughs, colds, and all diseases arising from them.

Lindsay's Blood Searcher.

The Blood is the very fountain of life; therefore, if we wish to restore health, we must first purify the blood; and to insure continued health, keep it pure. LINDSAY'S BLOOD SEARCHER is the safest and most effectual medicine for obtaining this desired effect, is always safe, and the most delicate can use it.

And we submit the following reasons why they should be preferred to any other American Watches:

In the first place, the Waltham Company, is the oldest, and has had fourfold the experience of any others engaged in the business in the United States.

In the second place, the machinery in use by the Waltham Company is far more perfect and varied, and as a result its Watches are of far higher grade and of greater variety, and are placed in the market at much lower prices than any others, quality and style fully considered.

In the third place, the Waltham Watch is now a staple article, its reputation fully established, and, as a consequence, it is sold at less profit, than any other watch in the market.

A RICH FIELD! A NOBLE WORK!!!

THE NEW

PICTORIAL

FAMILY BIBLE,

WITH OVER

1000 Illustrations,

50,000 REFERENCES;

A FAMILY RECORD

AND FAMILY ALBUM.

The Pictorial Family Bible contains a storehouse of information that can only reach the mind through the eye. Its Illustrations carry one back to the most important era of the world, and are of themselves a comprehensive review of the scriptures, representing the most interesting views, Characters, Symbols, Historical Events, Landscape Scenes, Antiquities, Custumes, Beasts, Birds, Insects, Plants, Minerals, Coins, Medals, Inscriptions and Incidents referred to throughout the Sacred Text. They attract the eye, correct erroneous impressions, awaken new thoughts, and furnish clearer views of Divine Truth. As a help to Parents, Ministers and Sabbath-School Teachers in fulfilling the duties of their separate and high vocations—and to all others to whom immortal souls are intrusted—this splendid Pictorial Volume cannot be overestimated. It is the Edition

Most Suitable for the Family,
Most Valuable for the Student,
Most Instructive for the Teacher,
Most Appropriate for the Child,
Most Useful for the Minister,
Most Interesting for the Farmer,
Most Elegant for the Parlor,
Most Profitable for the Study.

The Pictorial Family Bible, in addition to the features already alluded to, contains the Apocrypha, Concordance, Psalms in Metre, a Summary of the Sacred Truths as taught in the Inspired Book; together with numerous and comprehensive Tables and other historical and explanatory Matter, embodying the labors of many of the most eminent Biblical Scholars. It is printed on the finest calandared paper, from clear and open type, in one large and handsome quarto volume, and is bound in the most durable and attractive manner, while the prices are sufficiently low to place it within everybody's reach.

Experienced Agents are wanted through out the country for its sale, with whom liberal arrangements will be made. An opportunity of equal promise is rarely or never presented. Its sale will not be limited to any period, but will continue for a lifetime, constantly increasing with the growth and intelligence of the country. It is therefore desirable that those who engage with us, shall do so with a view to making the business a permanent one.

Ministers, Teachers, Students, Farmers, Young Men and Women,—those who would meet with the most profitable of all employments—are invited to correspond with us with a view to an agency. Not a few such are averaging from $5000 to $7000 annual profit in its sale. There is a great want for the book and a rich field offered, while it will elevate the spiritual condition by constant contact with and conversations upon its beautiful and eternal truths.

Agents on the Instalment Plan will be furnished the work in fine bindings. This plan is quite popular and profitable in cities and large towns. We have an edition of the book, superbly bound, with massive paneled sides, which has everywhere been received with marked favor. Subscriptions for the Pictorial Bible, in this style and in this way, can be obtained to an almost an unlimited extent, as there is no outlay of money that the Bible reader can make, which will yield him so rich a return.

We are also the publishers of Potter's Standard Editions of Family, Pulpit, Pocket and and Photographic Bibles and Testaments—nearly 300 different styles—so well known everywhere for their accuracy of text, beauty of finish and durability of binding. Always ask for POTTER'S STANDARD EDITIONS, and get the best. Catalogues containing styles and prices furnished on application.

For Circulars containing a full description of The Pictorial Family Bible, with sample sheet, and terms to Agents, address, "POTTER'S STANDARD BIBLE AND TESTAMENT HOUSE," Medicinal.

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
COMPOUND FLUID
Extract Catawba
GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These pills are the most delightful pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated, whether arising from imprudence or disease. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated, from the fact that sugar-coated Pills do not dissolve, but pass through the stomach without dissolving, consequently do not produce the desired effect. THE CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated. FIFTY CENTS PER BOX.

E

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Humors of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than any other preparation of sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of health and purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, blotches, pimples on the face, erysipelas, and all scaly eruptions of the skin, and beautifying the complexion. PRICE $1 50 PER BOTTLE.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOL'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU.
THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflamation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Postage Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brickdust Deposit, and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symtoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Weakfulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the age of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

Helmbold's Extract Buchu is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and excesses and imprudences in life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., Superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these diseases used in connection with Helmbold's Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus state of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians & midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages (attended with any of the above diseases or symptoms.)

in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflamation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

Thousands who have been the victims of incompetent persons, and who have paid heavy fees to be cured in a short time, have found they have been deceived, and that the "Poison" has, by the use of "powerful astringents," been dried up in the system, to break out in a more aggravated form, and perhaps after Marriage.

Use HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU for all affections and Diseases of the Urinary Organs, whether exciting in Male or Female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED ROSE WASH.

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Indurations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflamation, Hives Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Skalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Hembold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principle claim to unbound patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a toilet appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites safety and efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA, AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses, and upward of 3,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

WARNER'S
PILE REMEDY.

Warner's Pile Remedy has never failed (not even in one case) to cure the very worst cases of Blind, Itching or Bleeding Piles. Those who are afflicted should immediately call on their druggist and get it for it will, with the first application, instantly afford complete relief, and the few following applications are only required to effect a permanent cure without any trouble or inconvenience in its use.

WARNER'S PILE REMEDY is expressly for the Piles, and is not recommended to cure any other disease. It has cured many cases of over thirty years' standing. Price One Dollar. For sale by druggists everywhere.

No More
WEAK NERVES.

Warner's Dyspepsia Tonic is prepared expressly for Dyspeptics and those suffering with habitual Costiveness. There are very few who have not employed physicians for years to remedy what this preparation will do in a few weeks, by strengthening the nerves, increasing the circulation, restoring digestion, giving strength mentally and physically, enabling those who may have been confined for years to their rooms as invalids to again resume their occupations and all the duties of Life. One trial is all we ask to enable this remedy to recommend itself to the most skeptical. It is a slightly stimulating tonic and a splendid appetizer; it strengthens the stomach and restores the digestive organs to their healthy state. Weak, nervous and dyspeptic persons should use Warner's Dyspepsia Tonic. For sale by druggists. Price One Dollar.

COUGH no MORE

Warner's Cough Balsam is healing, softening and expectorating. The extraordinary power it possesses in immediately relieving and eventually curing, the most obstinate cases of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Catarrh, Hoarseness, Asthma and Consumption is almost incredible. So prompt is the relief and certain its effects in all the above cases, or any affection of the throat and lungs, that thousands of physicians are daily prescribing it, and one and all say that it is the most healing and expectorating medicine ever known. One dose always affords relief, and in most cases one bottle effects a cure. Sold by druggists, in large bottles. Price One Dollar. It is your own fault if you still cough and suffer. The Balsam will cure.

WINE OF LIFE.

The Great Blood Purifier and Delicious Drink Warner's Vinum Vitæ, or Wine of Life, is free from any poisonous drugs or impurities, being prepared for those who require a stimulant. It is a splendid appetizer and tonic, and the finest thing in the world for purifying the blood. It is the most pleasant and delicious article ever offered to the public; far superior to brandy, whisky, wine, bitters, or any other article. It is more healthy, and cheaper. Both male and female, young or old, can take the Wine of Life. It is, in fact, a life preserver. Those who wish to enjoy good health and a free flow of lively spirits, will do well to take the Wine of Life. It is different from anything ever before in use. It is sold by druggists. Price One Dollar, in quart bottles.

EMMENAGOGUE.

Warner's Emmenagogue is the only article known to cure the Whites, (it will cure in every case.) Where is the family in which this important medicine is not wanted? Mothers, this is the greatest blessing ever offered you, and you should immediately procure it. It is also a sure cure for Female Irregularities, and may be depended upon in every case where the monthly flow has been obstructed through cold or disease. Sold by druggists. Price One Dollar.

☞ Sold by all Druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of One Dollar and a Quarter. Address 659 State street, Chicago.
